GAS LEAKING, FLIGHT ENDS IN PASTURE

San Jacinto, Cal., July 14—Russia's amazing second transpolar plane, after being missing for seven hours over fog-bound California, landed in a cow pasture near here today to break all distance flying records.

The three daring airmen—Pilot Mikhail Gromov, Co-Pilot Major Andrei Yumashev and Navigator Sergei Danilin—brought their big red, single-motored plane down among the cows at about 10:35 a. m., E. D. T.

They had been in the air 62 hours and 13 minutes. They left Moscow at 8:22 p. m., E. D. T., last Sunday and had flown approximately 6610 miles.

The best former mark was set by the Frenchmen, Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi, who traversed 5657 miles from New York to Syria.

Gromov and his companions today appeared from the sky to the astonishment of this little town, which is tucked away at the foot of the towering San Jacinto mountains.

This range, about 70 miles east of Los Angeles, separates the orange country of Riverside from the desolate desert of the famous resorts like Palm Springs.

The tired aviators, after fighting Arctic gales over the polar cap and a night of terrifying fog, put

Beach Pollution Fear Spreads; Quincy Acts

Possibility that Wollaston and Merrymount beaches in Quincy might also be closed as a result of polluted waters loomed today as state chemists took samples of the waters for analysis.

Yesterday Dr. Richard M. Ash, Quincy health commissioner, ordered Black Creek closed for bathing. Today Dr. Ash said he believed swallowing the poisonous water in the creek would result in death in three days.

It is believed the pollution is coming from a dump on Southern Artery, adjacent to Black Creek and Furnace Brook, or from a break in sewer pipes. Today Dr. Ash ordered that dumping be halted pending investigation.

Black scum left by the tide at Wollaston and Merrymount beaches gave rise to fears the pollution has spread to these resorts and led to samples of water being taken here.

OPEN HEARING STILL AIM OF TEACHER

Still fighting, although ill, blonde Isabelle L. Hallin, Saugus high school teacher, declared today that despite losing the first round to the school board she will yet obtain a public hearing toward retaining her job.

Isabelle, by a 3 to 2 vote, lost the initial round in a school board session last night that nearly ended in a riot.

From her cot in a rest haven, within 50 miles of her Saugus home, she communicated exclusively with the Boston Evening American, after the results of a hectic meeting during which 400 persons jeered the board's decision was made known to her.

Through a close associate, who still kept the place of her confinement a secret, she voiced this reaction to the meeting of the school committee:

"I cannot believe it possible. There is not a thing that they could point a finger at me for. I cannot be wrong. I know it.

"I am sorry I was unable to be there. I fought hard. I fought until the last ounce of strength was drained from my body.

PLANS TO FIGHT

"I refrained from going to Maine this summer because of the tax on my strength from my school work and dramatic coaching. Then I have to struggle through this.

"My outside activity was criticized. I never knew that dramatic activity ever hurt anyone who was an English teacher.

"I am just a woman. I worked hard. Is this the reward?

"It does not seem that the town

HIT, ROB WOMAN IN CAMBRIDGE

In a daring daylight robbery, Mrs. Emily B. Millett, wife of a retired publisher, was knocked unconscious today at the very door of her home on Fayerweather street, in an exclusive sector of Cambridge.

The thief, who lay in wait behind an arbor of ornamental shrubs until Mrs. Millett returned from shopping, took her purse, containing $100, some cancelled checks and a key ring, she told police.

He escaped before she could catch a good sight of him, Mrs. Millett said. She is the wife of Joshua M. Millett.

Councillor Harris Goes Under Knife

Following the operation officials at the hospital said her condition was "good." They would not reveal the nature of the operation.

Mrs. Harris, mother of six children, is the only woman ever elected to the Boston City Council. She was inducted into office last April and occupies the same seat which for many years was occupied by her brother, the late Richard D. Gleason.

ROOSEVELT AND ROBINSON

International News Photograph Service

Of national import in its effect on the plans of these long-time political cronies and personal friends was the death today of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas. Shown here in close conference with President Roosevelt at the latter's Hyde Park (N. Y.) home, Senator Robinson was kingpin of New Deal forces in Congress. He led the fight for the President's Supreme Court reorganization bill and was in the thick of the battle now raging over the measure. Expert observers at the national capital predicted today that Robinson's death might postpone action on the court bill until next session of Congress.

SHIFT SEARCH FOR AMELIA

Honolulu, July 14 (AP)—Naval authorities directing a vast aerial search along the equator for Amelia Earhart and her navigator, Fred Noonan, missing twelve days, reduced the number of searching planes today and indicated the hunt would be ended Saturday.

ROBINSON'S DEATH STUNS CAPITAL

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Senator Joe T. Robinson, Democratic leader and New Deal legislative kingpin, was found dead today at the age of 64.

Robinson's body was discovered at 9:15 a. m. (EDT) by the family's colored maid, Mary Jasper.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said death was due to heart disease.

Doctor George W. Calver, capitol physician, said Robinson apparently had left his bed about midnight and had gone to the bathroom where he fell face downward. He said Robinson had suffered several heart attacks in recent months.

Plans were made, subject to his widow's approval, for a funeral service in the Senate chamber tomorrow with Mr. Roosevelt as chief mourner.

Both Senate and House adjourned out of respect.

Definite funeral arrangements were not possible immediately because Mrs. Robinson was so shocked by news of her husband's death she was unable to talk by telephone with friends here.

As word of his death spread over the capital, many of his colleagues went to the Robinson home, the first to arrive were Senators Harrison (D.) Mississippi, and Walsh (D.) Massachusetts. Both were affected so deeply they declined to comment.

The sudden death of the Senate leader shocked the capital and threw the administration's legislative program into turmoil.

Robinson, who had been Democratic leader since 1922, was personally in charge of the administration's two major legislative campaigns to enact President Roosevelt's bills to reorganize the courts and the execu-

DEATH BRINGS CRISIS TO ROOSEVELT PLANS

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, July 14 (INS)—The death today of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, for 15 years Democratic leader of the Senate, may have far-reaching effect not only on the fortunes of his party but on American history.

Robinson died unattended and alone at the height of a party crisis which has seen the Democratic party split as it never has been split before—not even in 1928—over President Roosevelt's determination to reorganize the federal judiciary system and increase the membership of the United States Supreme Court.

He was leading that fight. He had small stomach for the business, but party loyalty and his position as majority leader impelled him to go through with it. Short tempered and aggressively he did so. In the end he hoped to achieve his lifetime ambition of a place on the Supreme Bench.

There were rumors—never confirmed, but persistent—that he had been offered the place by President Roosevelt when the court their big ship down in the pasture and skidded it to a bumpy stop.

Soviet Airmen Set Record in 6610-Mile Hop

Then they climbed out, stretched, blinked and pointed to their fuel tanks, indicating that the fuel was leaking out.

GREETS FLIERS

The first person to greet the fliers was Peter Etchelberry, who owns the pasture land.

He had heard the ship roaring over his house and had looked out just in time to see it toss up turf and soil as it bounded over the ground, sending frightened cows scurrying to safety.

Etchelberry ran to the plane and helped the airmen out.

He then notified the constable of San Jacinto, who in turn called the U. S. Army signal corps at March Field, near Riverside, about 15 miles from San Jacinto.

American army officers and men immediately took off by plane and auto from March Field for San Jacinto. Meantime hundreds of residents of San Jacinto and fruit growers and farmers for miles around gathered around the plane.

SOLDIERS GUARD PLANE

As the fliers grew more adept at their sign language they signified definitely that a leaking fuel tank forced them to land.

When soldiers from March Field reached the pasture they threw a cordon around the plane and protected it from souvenir hunters. The soldiers said the ship did not seem to be damaged.

Maj. H. V. Strahm, U. S. A., took charge of the plane and invited the Russians to accompany him by motor back to March Field.

They indicated they wanted food and something to drink, and then would go with Maj. Strahm.

Etchelberry took the Russians to his house and set out food and coffee, and cigarettes. His guests ate heartily and smoked with deep satisfaction as they lounged back in their chairs.

REFUSE SLEEP

They sighed and slumped to indicate their fatigue, but shook their heads when Etchelberry indicated they were welcome to sleep in the farmhouse.

Gregori Gohkman, acting Soviet consul at San Francisco, who had spent the night and morning searching for his fellow-countrymen, telephoned from San Diego that he would fly at once to San Jacinto to greet the fliers in the name of Russia and prepare for their care.

He had flown 500 miles from Oakland, where the airmen were last heard from about midnight last night, down the San Joaquin Valley, with a stop at Bakersfield, and on to San Diego where he thought the landing might be made.

The Soviet trio left Moscow at 3:22 A. M. Monday, (8:22 P. M. E. D. T. Sunday.) They passed over Rudolf Island, the last point of land between them and the North Pole, at 6:01 P. M. Monday, then battled snow and cyclonic winds before reaching the Pole at 8:14 P. M., a little less than a day from Moscow.

On this phase of the flight the red-winged monoplane was kept at an altitude of 8,800 feet or above wind resistance.

After passing the northernmost spot on the globe the airmen streaked out across the wild reaches of the Yukon and northwest territory for the shores of Canada, 1,500 miles away.

WINDS AID FLIGHT

Favorable winds kept the plane ahead of schedule, and last night it became known definitely the objective would be "beyond Oakland." As originally announced by the Kremlin, the flight was to be from Moscow to San Francisco or beyond.

The announced purpose of the flight was to "confirm again the possibility of regular communications intercontinentally by way of the north pole."

It served to demonstrate further the practicability of Soviet engineered and manufactured aircraft, as first was strikingly attested by the successful Moscow to Vancouver, Wash., flight of Valeria Chekaloff, Georgi Biadukoff and Alex Baliakoff.

Gromoff, Co-Pilot Yumosheff and Navigator Danilin, received permission from the Kremlin to make their flight June 10, and they intended to get away with the Chekaloff-Baldukoff-Beliakoff expedition. Their plane was not ready, however, and bad weather caused a postponement until Sunday.

ANOTHER TRIP SOON

The previous long distance non-stop record of 5637 miles, from New York to Syria, was established by the Frenchmen, Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, in 1933.

The second Soviet air expedition was made under rules of the International Aeronautical Federation. Officials of that organization along the Pacific coast were notified to be ready to check the barograph of the plane, regardless of where it landed.

Officials said that the only precaution necessary was that the barograph was to be sealed when sent in for checking, with affidavits of persons who saw it taken from the plane, with the seal unbroken.

Home Bombed, Girl and Mother Injured

Scranton, Pa., July 14 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Zupon, 54, widow, and her daughter, Theresa, 19, were burned seriously and injured today when dynamite was exploded in their home at Old Forge.

Police believe some person, seeking to kill both Mrs. Zupon and her daughter, entered the home while the family slept and set off the dynamite.

Peiping Battle Lull Lets U. S. Citizens Flee

Peiping, July 14—The Japanese high command at Tientsin rushed 2000 reinforcements, fully supported with artillery and armored cars, to the Peiping battle area today, after the defeat of Japanese troops by the 29th Chinese Route Army before the southern and eastern gates of the city yesterday.

Fighting was halted this morning after an engagement near the Nanyuan airdrome, eight miles south of Peiping, that lasted almost into the summer dawn. Once again the gates of the city were opened and rail service to Tientsin was resumed.

American travelers, including 150 army and navy officers on China stations and their families, fled the city on the first of three trains allowed to leave for Tientsin this morning.

The Japanese reinforcements were headed for the Japanese army field base at Fengtai, west of the city, in the zone where clashes between maneuvering Japanese and the 29th Route Army last Wednesday precipitated the crisis.

The reinforcements moved up to the front in a fleet of motor trucks just arrived from Manchoukuo, and in all available vehicles that could be bought from Tientsin dealers.

At the same time, Japanese sources here announced their troops had evacuated the Wanpinghsien village area, near Marco Polo bridge, where the first clash occurred.

This latest development caused another lull in the surface tension, but seemingly did not end the increasing difficulties of the crisis.

With the American army transport S. S. Grant due to sail from Chingwangtao Friday, the United States embassy requested Chinese officials to run a special train carrying Americans and British to that port.

The request was refused unless there is forthcoming guarantee that Japanese troops will return the train safely from Chingwangtao.

All foreign embassies were warning their nationals living outside Peiping's walls to withdraw inside the city, now almost completely isolated. With food prices soaring, British and Americans shut themselves in houses and planted their nation's flags outside windows.

Tokyo, July 14 (AP)—China today demanded that Japan end the North China crisis by evacuating her troops from the battle area west of Peiping, and halting movement of reinforcements to the front.

The Japanese government immediately rejected the demands.

Britain Urges Protest With France and U. S.

London, July 14 (INS)—The British government today informally proposed concerted action by Britain, France and the United States to restrain Japan from further violence in North China.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden suggested to French Ambassador Corbin and American Charge d'Affaires Herschel Johnson that the three powers, separately or jointly, send notes to Tokio, expressing concern over developments in the Far East.

Eden proposed the notes also express hope the North China incident will not be permitted to develop into a major clash endangering Far Eastern peace and the interests of Britain, France and the United States there.

STARS Cling to Reel NAMES

DERIDE BAN ON 'ALIASES'

Hollywood, July 14 (AP)—Lucille Le Sueur and Helen Williams and William Claude Dunkinfield . . . that isn't right. Let's start again.

Joan Crawford and Myrna Loy and W. C. Fields have become very attached to their names.

And so have Carole Lombard and Frederic March and Paul Muni and just about anybody else in filmland you can think of.

And they intend to keep them, come what may in Massachusetts, it was indicated today as Hollywood heard that a state representative in Massachusetts is fathering a bill to make adopted names illegal.

HOLLYWOOD UNIMPRESSED

Rep. Frances N. Coyne said, in announcing plans to introduce the measure, he couldn't understand why entertainers "feel they have a right to deceive the public" by using names other than their own.

On the whole, movieland doesn't take Rep. Coyne's proposal very seriously. Joan Blondell, whose name is Joan Blondell, with a knowing wink said she once read about "a man in Boston who believed in witches."

BOB BURNS AND WAFFORD

Bob Burns brought his pig into the discussion.

"Some folks call Wafford just plain hog," said Bob, "but somehow or other he's got a personality, and he minds his own affairs."

"Now now," asked Groucho Marx, whose mother called him Julius, "could you get a name like 'Guadalupe Villa Lobos' on a marquee? Not that I care. I'm just wondering."

Guadalupe, etc. is Lupe Velez. Sylvia Krakow has become the alliterative Sylvia Sidney. Few can spell, or pronounce, Muni Weisenfreund, so it became simply Paul Muni. Jacques De Bujac, who had trouble getting folks to spell it, became Bruce Cabot.

TOO LATE FOR SOME

In chorus, Jane Peters and Frederick Bickel said:

"It's too late now."

Coyne's Bill Carries Heavy Jail Penalties

By Associated Press.

State Representative Francis X. Coyne today filed a bill which would compel actors and actresses of stage and screen, athletes, boxers, wrestlers and all other public entertainers to appear in Massachusetts under their real names or suffer heavy penalties.

A first offender would be fined $1000 or imprisoned six months. A second offender would be fined $2000 and sentenced to not less than six months. Further violation would close the state to the offender.

Coyne predicted that within six months legislation similar to his own bill would be offered in every state in the Union.

Assuming the role of movie critic temporarily, Coyne declared:

"There are not ten real actors and actresses in Hollywood, and by that I mean that about 95 per cent of the so-called stars are in fact amateurs. Through high-powered exploitation they have been built up to artificial heights, and a gullible public has been forced to swallow them."

"Horrors" She Says of Cupid

International News Photograph Service

Mrs. Nancy Hoyt Gwynne Curtis, twice divorced socialite author, whose dash with James Baker, chauffeur-hair dresser, was halted at Canadian border through efforts of Mrs. Curtis' mother.

RETURNS HOME AFTER BEING TURNED BACK AT CANADA

Bar Harbor, Me., July 14—Whether their dash to the Canadian border and back was a frustrated elopement or just a joy ride, Mrs. Nancy Hoyt Gwynne Curtis and her 27-year-old hairdresser-cabman were home again today.

And nobody could prove by what the socialite authoress from Washington said, just what had prompted the excursion that roused Mrs. Curtis' mother to the point of wiring "stop orders" to the immigration patrol.

The question of a wedding with cabman James Baker was put bluntly to the twice-divorced Mrs. Curtis after she'd had a few hours sleep today and her reply was an indignant:

"Horrors, no!"

OTHER EXPLANATION

But not so many hours before she had explained the return from a ride that started yesterday afternoon by saying:

"They wouldn't let us across the border."

All of which made it very complicated, inasmuch as Baker, back on the taxi-driving part of his double job, was mum as a clam about the entire affair.

So did Mrs. Curtis' mother, apparently. For the mother, Mrs. Henry Martyn Hoyt, wasted no time in burning the wires to the border with messages to halt her daughter and Baker if they tried to cross the line.

Immigration officials finally sent back word that they had halted a young couple at St. Stephens, and that reassured Mrs. Hoyt. Her daughter and Baker drove slowly up to the Hoyt home in Northeast Harbor shortly after midnight. Baker, it was said, was ill afterwards, so he slept at the police station here before going back to work.

If, and when, the attractive authoress marries the young cab driver-hairdresser, it will fulfill a prophecy made in Reno in 1932 when she divorced Curtis on grounds of non-support.

At that time the society writer declared she would marry again, adding "probably many, many more times."

MARRIED IN 1927

The authoress and Curtis were married in 1927 after a courtship that lasted only a few months. At that time Miss Hoyt, daughter of Henry A. Hoyt, solicitor general under President Taft, was just beginning to make her mark as a writer. Following her marriage to Curtis her best writing was accomplished.

Mrs. Curtis' first marriage, to Gerald Astair Wynne, of London, ended after six months, in the Paris divorce courts. The Englishman won the pretty American's hand after she had gained considerable notoriety by jilting Lieutenant Frederick Wiseman-Clark of the Royal British Navy.

The authoress' name was prominently linked with the sensational death of Smith Reynolds, husband of Libby Holman, torch singer, when, in the midst of the investigation into the tobacco heir's death, Mrs. Curtis announced she had planned to secure a divorce and marry the slain millionaire.

FEARED "TALK"

At that time, Mrs. Curtis confided to newspapermen:

"I met Smith aboard the Leviathan en route to the state from Europe in 1930. We were both married then but we planned divorces to marry each other. We were both stubborn, however, and one night when he asked me to fly to Carolina with him and be married, I wouldn't do it.

"I thought my friends would say 'Nancy is marrying for money.' Besides he was eight years younger and I was fool enough to think my friends would talk."

The divorcee's sister was the poet Elinor Wylie, who ended her life in a plunge down the stairs of a London home. Henry Hoyt, an older brother, committed suicide in Greenwich Village. Her younger brother, Morton, was the first husband of the oft-married Eugenia Bankhead-Hoyt-Butt-Lee-Smith-White, sister of the glamorous Tallulah Bankhead, actress.

N. Y. Dog Cools Off in $14 Hotel Room

New York, July 14 (INS)—Jean, a pedigreed French bulldog today was the kingpin among his canine pals—for hadn't he spent a day in a $14-a-day air-conditioned room in one of Manhattan's swanky hotels while everybody else sweltered?

Jean, went around his master's apartment whining about the heat. His mistress, Mrs. Dorothea Robinson, fearing he would pass out, sent him to the air-cooled hotel.

The master, Municipal Court Justice William H. Robinson, remained in the apartment.

Schwab Voices Optimism Again

Altoona, Pa., July 14 (AP)—General improvement in business throughout the United States was forecast today by Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, an Altoona visitor.

"I'm as optimistic as ever about business," he said with a smile.

Temperature Skids to Record Cold

Nature's latest and maddest caprice today sent the temperature down to 55 degrees at 5 a. m.—a new cold record for July 14.

A chill northerly wind early today put a tang of autumn in the air, while heavy dew on lawns and flowers gave a deceptive appearance of frost.

Previous cold record for this day was 56 degrees in 1926. Warmest July 14 on record was 95 in 1873.

Polar air from the Hudson Bay region of Canada, pushing southward over New England, eastern New York and the middle Atlantic coast, has brought the temperate weather, replacing tropical marine air which last week held New England in a record heat wave.

At 10 a. m. the mercury had rebounded to 69 degrees, with prospects of climbing steadily throughout the day toward the 80-degree mark.

N. H. Man Killed in Ayer Crash

Ayer, July 14—Arthur Huchins, 53, of Reed Ferry, N. H., was fatally injured shortly after noon today when his small truck collided with another truck carrying 12 tons of lumber on route 2.

Police said the lumber truck, owned by Charles Lolone of Waltham, was operated by David H. Beal of River street, Waltham. Beal was released from the hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

Ex-Senator Moses 'Much Better'

Concord, N. H., July 14 (AP)—Former U. S. Senator George H. Moses, operated on at a local hospital Monday, was reported "much better" this morning after a comfortable night.

Death Loses Race

A motorist who crashed through a wooden railroad guard, narrowly escaping being struck by a fast-moving Boston & Albany train in Cambridge early today, is being sought by police. Speeding up Massachusetts avenue toward Arlington in North Cambridge in a coupe, the driver broke three feet off the lowered railway barrier.

Five degrees above the all-time cold record for Concord and Lexington, the temperature there at 5 a. m. today was 47 degrees. Resident climbing out of blankets this morning, hastily retrieved from the closets where they had been put away until winter, were astonished to see what at first they thought was frost. But it was only heavy dew.

PASSING LAID TO OVERWORK, HEART STROKE

His colleagues generally had expected his appointment to the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Van Devanter.

Although Robinson's health had not been quite as good as in former years, his sudden death was a tremendous shock to his senatorial colleagues and all of official Washington.

The Democratic leader had been working with terrific energy during recent weeks in an effort to devise a compromise court bill for which he could obtain Senate approval. The substitute measure now under debate was drafted under his direction.

He also had given close personal attention to the government reorganization program.

Two or three weeks ago he personally introduced a compromise bill to carry out the chief executive's reorganization program and had called his committee to begin work on it today.

HEALTH CAUSED WORRY

He had missed several days from the Senate during recent weeks due to the strain on his physique.

After attending a strategy conference with his chief lieutenants on the court bill yesterday morning, Robinson returned to his home instead of attending the Senate session "because he did not feel up to par." There was no indication, however, that his illness was serious.

Robinson's home, where he was found dead today, is directly across the Capitol plaza from the Senate wing of hte Capitol. He was temporarily living alone, as Mrs. Robinson had gone home to Little Rock, Ark.

Robinson, for the past 15 years Democratic leader in the Senate, had been one of the outstanding political figures in Washington.

After attending the University of Arkansas and the Virginia Law school, Robinson began reading law in a small law office back in 1892. Two years later, he was elected to the general assembly of his home state.

While serving in the legislature, Robinson continued to practice law, and has, off and on, since. But public office became his chief career when he was elected to Congress in 1902, during the administration of President Theodore Roosevelt.

After serving in the House 10 years, Robinson retired to become governor of Arkansas. He only stayed in the governor's office a few weeks, however, because a vacancy appeared in the Senate and he was quickly chosen to fill it.

When the Democrats gained control of the Senate along with the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Robinson became majority leader. As such, he has been the New Deal's legislative chieftain, and steered through Congress the mass of new laws initiated by President Roosevelt's administration.

ANSWERED "AL'S" ATTACK

Even before he became Senate leader, Robinson had become recognized nationally in the Democratic party. He was chairman of the party convention in 1920 which selected Roosevelt as vice-presidential candidate.

Eight years later the Democratic convention chose him as vice-presidential candidate to run on the ticket with Governor "Al" Smith of New York.

Because of that, he had been chosen as the official administration spokesman for replies to Smith's attacks on the New Deal.

Again in 1936, when Roosevelt was renominated at Philadelphia, Robinson was the convention's permanent chairman.

In his capacity as majority leader during the New Deal, Robinson supported the administration's program from beginning to end. Critics have contended that he was abandoning his principles in doing so, because they claimed he was a conservative at heart.

But others have contended that Robinson's career displayed a consistent streak of liberalism. From his early House days he supported child labor and anti-trust legislation, as well as other measures characterized as "liberal."

He was without doubt one of the Senate's most popular members, despite a violent temper, which, on occasion, caused him difficulties.

Away from work, Robinson was one of the most genial of men. He was famous for his story telling. His chief recreations were hunting and fishing.

The sudden death of Robinson gave rise immediately to speculation over his successor as Democratic leader. When talk of his possible appointment to the Supreme Court began, three major possibilities were mentioned for leader—Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, Harrison of Mississippi and Barkley of Kentucky.

Garner Sad

Uvalde, Texas, July 14 (AP)—Vice-President John N. Garner was greatly shocked when informed early today of the death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas in Washington.

The vice-president was away from his Texas home on a fishing trip when the nation learned of the passing of the Democratic leader.

SEN. JOE ROBINSON

CRISIS LOOMS IN ROOSEVELT BATTLES

fight was fought through to successful conclusion. Death dramatically intervened to prevent his ever attaining his ambition.

Among the immediate developments of Robinson's sudden death were these:

The court fight may be abandoned for this session. Privately, most Democratic members, pro and con, hope that it will be, and there is a majority sentiment in favor of compromising the issue by submission of a constitutional amendment.

A battle is in prospect over the succession to Robinson as leader, with Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, now assistant leader, and Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, as the leading candidates. The White House will be inclined to favor Barkley, although most of the anti-court Democrats will be for Harrison.

GARNER MAY RUSH BACK

Vice President Garner, who has been "vacationing" in his native Texas, probably will rush back to Washington at the instance of President Roosevelt.

Garner, like Robinson, is reputed to have had little stomach for the court fight. At the beginning of it, some weeks ago, the vice president quietly deserted Washington and announced he was going home for a rest.

A portent of Robinson's death was seen in the Senate last week, when he made the last major speech of his life.

Arguing for enactment of the President's court bill, Robinson held the floor for two hours. Outside the temperature was boiling. Inside the chamber tempers were at hot point.

In his usual vigorous fashion, Robinson shouted his argument and flailed the air with both arms.

Finally, to lend greater emphasis to his argument, he stamped the floor with both feet. His face was flushed beet-red.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, the only physician in the Senate, noticed the flushed condition and the tremendous effort of the Arkansan was making.

He walked across the chamber and sat down beside the stamping leader.

"Be careful, Joe. Don't kill yourself," he whispered.

Robinson stopped speaking, leaned over a desk and asked:

"What did you say?"

"I said, don't kill yourself, Joe," repeated Copeland.

His arms flailed again, his feet pounded a crescendo on the floor, and his deep voice could be heard outside in the corridors.

A few moments later he staggered slightly.

His beet-red complexion turned ashen white, and he sat down.

He was breathing heavily, and he was so unlike himself that he absently drew a cigar from his pocket and attempted to light it, in violation of all Senate rules. He held the match until it burned his fingers, then dropped it.

When he sat down, Copeland again spoke to him. He was of the opinion that Robinson had suffered a mild heart attack—a premonitory warning of what was to come. Again, after the session, Copeland and others warned him against making any such further effort.

Robinson's death complicates enormously the whole administration and congressional picture. It will hasten the deep-seated desire of most members to adjourn and go home, leaving the President's legislative program to be dealt with at a later date, either in the session beginning in January or a reconvened session in November.

This program includes vitally important legislation aside from the court bill—the wages and hour legislation, the farm tenancy bill, the ever-normal granary idea, housing legislation, etc.

For ten days Washington has been suffering from a heat wave climatically and temperamentally. The temperature has rarely dropped below the nineties, and the humidity has been oppressive.

This, added to the most serious schism the Democratic party has suffered since Madison Square Garden, has promoted almost an obsession on the part of Democrats to chuck it all and go home.

At the time Robinson's appointment to the Supreme Court was first rumored, three candidates for the vacated leadership appeared almost instantly—Senator Barkley, Senator Harrison and Senator "Jimmy" Byrnes.

Harrison, chairman of the powerful finance committee, did not seem much interested at first. Later, his friends persuaded him that it was his "duty" to take it, and they have waged an active under-cover campaign for weeks in his behalf.

Barkley, like "Barkis," is willing, and is in high favor with the White House because of his unswerving devotion to Mr. Roosevelt, both before and after Chicago.

Byrnes, who early in the administration was frequently the White House spokesman in the Senate, has lately suffered some fall from White House grace. It was Byrnes who sponsored several weeks ago the proposal to make local communities contribute 40 per cent of the relief funds expended in their localities.

COLLEAGUES EXTOL DEAD LEADER

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Senator Wheeler (D.) Montana, chief of the forces opposing Senator Robinson on the court reorganization bill, today called the majority leader "a great leader of men and an able statesman."

"I regret extremely the untimely passing of Senator Robinson," said Wheeler.

Senator Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts said:

"Senator Robinson's long experience in the public service, his pre-eminent knowledge of public questions, his dynamic qualities in debate and his courageous leadership made him one of the most commanding public men of our day."

Senator Peter G. Gerry (D.) Rhode Island: "I am shocked and extremely sorry to learn of the sudden death of Senator Robinson. For many years I have had a very close friendship with him."

SPEAKER'S TRIBUTE

Speaker Bankhead: "I, in company with all other of his friends and admirers, am grieved and shocked beyond expression over the very tragic death of Senator Robinson. There was certainly no man in the legislative service of his country who stood upon a higher pinnacle of usefulness, influence and power than he.

"His untimely death is in truth an irreparable loss to his party, to his state and the nation and I mourn with those woh loved and admirerd him over his passing away."

Senator Borah (R.), Idaho: "Senator Robinson was a soldier, faithful to his general, though not always agreeing with the line of battle. We have all known for weeks that he was far from well but he carried on with great ability and untiring courage.

"Those of us who differed with him most had a chance to appreciate him most—we knew that beneath the armor which he girded on for a fight, there was always a big heart and a strong man of character.

"His death was strangely tragic—dying as the great ambition of his life was seemingly close at hand."

Senator O'Mahoney (D.) Wyoming, another leading foe of court reorganization, said Robinson "was one of the most lovable, vigorous, able and loyal characters I've ever known."

"He has made a record that will stand with the greatest in the history of the Senate," O'Mahoney said.

BURDEN HASTENED END

Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican floor leader:

"I am shocked beyond measure. Undoubtedly the unbearable load he was forced to carry this session hastened his going. The Senate has lost a fine companion and the country a great legislator."

Senator King (D.) of Utah:

"I am greatly shocked and deeply grieved at the passing of a dear friend. I had known Mr. Robinson for years, and admired his courage. I was glad to support him for appointment to the Supreme Court. His death is a great loss to the country and the Democratic party."

Senator Pope (D.) of Idaho:

"No man in the Senate was better loved, or will be missed more than he."

Joe T. Robinson For 35 Years in House, Senate

Defeated for Vice-President in 1928, when he ran with Al Smith, Senator Joseph Taylor Robinson of Arkansas, who died suddenly today, remained one of the leading figures on the national scene under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

At the time of his death he was in charge of the compromise Supreme Court bill and was a strong possibility for appointment to the highest court in the land. Previously, through more than four years, he had been the President's chief lieutenant convoying New Deal legislation through the Senate.

BORN IN ARKANSAS

The American public accepted Robinson's prominence in this exciting era of national legislation as a natural development of his career, for he had impressed himself upon the country as a whole as a man of ability in the vigorous, but losing, campaign which he waged with Governor Smith.

Returning to the Senate, after that campaign, with his prestige at a high peak, he plunged energetically into his work as party and later as majority leader in the Senate and was still devoting himself unsparingly to this task when death came.

Senator Robinson was born near Little Rock, Ark., August 26, 1872, the son of Dr. James and Matilda Jane Robinson. He was educated partly at home, partly in rural schools, and at the age of 17 took up teaching to earn money to enable him to study law.

IN CONGRESS 34 YEARS

After attending Arkansas State University he took the law course at the University of Virginia and in 1895, at the age of 23, was admitted to the bar. The following December he married Ewilda Gertrude Miller. They had no children.

He first went to Congress in 1903. Ten years later he established what is probably a record when, in a period of 14 days, he was successively congressman, governor and senator.

He was elected governor of Arkansas in September, 1912. On the following January 14, he resigned as congressman to take the oath as governor. The death of one of the state's senators had meanwhile created a vacancy, and so the legislature elected the new governor to the senatorship on January 28.

DENOUNCED AL'S FOES

He was re-elected U. S. senator in 1918, 1924, 1930 and last year.

Early in 1928, when it appeared Governor Smith might be the nominee of the Democratic Party for President, Senator Robinson rose in the Senate and denounced his colleague, Tom Heflin of Alabama, who had been assailing Smith on religious grounds.

This strengthened the cause of religious tolerance and at Houston where Governor Smith was nominated, Senator Robinson, as convention chairman, reiterated his remarks and, amid a stormy scene, was himself nominated for Vice-President on the first ballot. He campaigned from coast to coast in the weeks that followed and was bitterly disappointed at the result.

The South, which he claimed as his home, had rejected the standard bearers of the Democratic party and he took the defeat to heart. Thereafter he devoted much of his time to healing the breach.

Moreover, he enlisted the support of the independent Republicans and not only saved the face of his party after his overwhelming defeat, but helped to put it on the road to the unprecedented successes that lay ahead.

Baruch Sad Over News

New York, July 14 (AP)—Upon learning of the death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, one of his close friends for many years, Bernard M. Baruch cancelled his passage to Europe on the Normandie, sailing at noon today, and left for Washington.

The Senate leader had planned on joining Baruch in Europe later in the summer.

"I am very deeply saddened," Baruch said. "Not only has the nation lost one of its greatest leaders, but I have lost one of my closest friends."

Hurley in Tribute To Sen. Robinson

"The untimely death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson deprives the nation of a leader in constructive thought," he said.

"The solemnity of the occasion welds factional differences of opinion into a united regret. I wish to extend the sympathy of the people of Massachusetts as well as my own sympathy to the family and friends of Senator Robinson in these hours of sadness."

Farley Pays His Tribute

Denver, July 14 (AP)—Postmaster-General James A. Farley said today he was "inexpressibly shocked" to learn of the death in Washington of the Democratic leader, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas.

"Senator Robinson had been an outstanding American for many, many years. His sudden death is a terrible thing, and he will be mourned by millions of his fellow citizens," Farley said.

TAMMANY HEAD BACKS COPELAND FOR MAYOR

New York, July 14 (AP)—Tammany leader James J. Dooling broke with James A. Farley's pro-New Deal coalition today and told associates he would back United States Senator Royal S. Copeland for mayor of New York City.

Immediately afterward, influential Republicans began making plans to obtain the Republican primary nomination for Senator Copeland, opponent of the Roosevelt administration, as an anti-New Deal standard bearer.

Simultaneously, Democrats began a campaign to get Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia (a Republican last election) nominated by their party as the Democratic candidate. Another group of Republicans previously had asked La Guardia to run on their ticket.

ROOSEVELT IN HIGH TRIBUTE TO ROBINSON

Washington, July 14 (INS)—President Roosevelt praised Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic Senate leader, who died today, as a man of "true liberal thought."

The President issued the following statement:

"In the face of a dispensation so swift in its coming and so tragic in the loss it brings to the nation, we bow in sorrow. A pillar of strength is gone. A soldier has fallen with face to the battle.

"I personally mourn the passing of a greatly beloved friend whose fidelity through long years never wavered. Those who knew Joseph Taylor Robinson best recognized in him the qualities of true liberal thought. Mindful of the needs of the underprivileged he was devoted always to improvement of the lot of the masses.

"In his going Joe Robinson has left a record as high in achievement as it was faithful in performance. He never temporized with principle nor bargained where the public interest was the issue.

"But, day by day, through long service in High office, he brought to the national council a contribution of great learning and soun dwisdom—a leadership inspired by courage and guided by consummate common sense and a devotion to duty given without selfish interest.

"And so death found him at the last with hope unfatering, with vision unimmed, and with courage unafraid. Of him well may it be said: He has fought a good fight; he has finished his course; he has kept his faith."

Robinson's Ability Extolled by Mayor

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas was a man of personal charm as well as of great ability, Mayor Mansfield said today, in a statement issued upon announcement of the senator's death.

The mayor said:

"The sudden death of Senator Robinson comes as a great shock. He was a man of outstanding ability and of rare personal charm. He was a natural leader of men and possessed to a great degree the power to reconcile conflicting interests and opinions.

"He was a tower of strength to the administration, and President Roosevelt, as well as the Senate and the nation, has sustained a great loss."

Estate To Widow, Children Cut Off

Salem, July 14—Under the terms of his will filed in probate court here today, William H. Evans of Salisbury left his entire $10,000 estate to his wife. Evans died June 22; his will was dated July, 1935.

"I purposely refrain from making any gifts to my son and daughter," the will read. His son, Benjamin F. Evans, lives in Newburyport, and his daughter, Mrs. Marion F. Gardner, lives in Danielson, Ct.

PLAN ROBINSON RITES IN SENATE CHAMBER

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Senate leaders tentatively arranged today for a public funeral for Senator Robinson of Arkansas in the Senate Chamber tomorrow, with President Roosevelt attending. Final decision, however, was reserved pending woord from Mrs. Robinson.

Senator Pittman (D.), Nevada, President Pro Tempore of the Senate, told newspapermen Mrs. Robinson was so shocked by the sudden death of her husband, that she had been unable to discuss his funeral.

A group of leaders, including representatives of both parties, gathered in the office of Edwin Halsey, secretary of the Senate, to arrange funeral plans. They talked with Mrs. Robinson, in Arkansas, by telephone, but she broke down and was unable to continue.

White House aides said President Roosevelt would not be able to go to Little Rock for the burial because of official business. He will be represented there, it was said, by Vice-President Garner, who will go to Little Rock from Uvalde, Tex., where he is now vacationing.

The chief executive was informed over the telephone of his friend's death by Stephen T. Early, a White House secretary.

As soon as he had risen, the chief executive sent a telegram of condolences to the governor of Arkansas and then wrote a personal note of sympathy in long hand to Mrs. Robinson.

Fear Art Treasures Of Grosberg Taken

Painters working at the Arborway, Jamaica Plain, residence of C. M. Grosberg, Washington street department store owner, today discovered a rear door forced. The house had been locked while Grosberg is in Europe for the summer.

Fearing the mansion has been looted of art treasures, police today were seeking friends of the family to determine whether anything is missing.

Wheeler Hits Court Fight as Causing Robinson's Death

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D.) of Montana, after expressing regret today at the "untimely passing" of "a political and personal friend," Senator Joseph T. Robinson, predicted the court controversy might be terminated speedily as a result of the leader's death. He said:

"I beseech the President to drop this court fight lest he appear to fight against God."

The last part of the remark of the opposition leader to the court reorganization bill was a quotation from the Old Testament.

'Gave Life to Job,' Says Arkansan

Little Rock, Ark., July 14 (AP)—Governor Carl E. Bailey, advised today of the death in Washington of Senator Joe T. Robinson, said it was "a tragic loss to the nation, the state and the party."

"It's simply another of those situations in which a man literally gave his life to his work," he added.

Under Arkansas law Governor Bailey must call a special election not less than 60 nor more than 120 days hence to fill the vacancy. Pending the election, he might make a temporary appointment.

Denial of Public Hearing Fails to Daunt Teacher

in which I was born could treat me so shabbily.

"I want to regain my strength and fight again.

"This is not the end. It cannot be the end.

"The Saugus school committee may deny me a public hearing but I will have a public hearing before the world."

TOWNSFOLK REBEL

Whisperings of a townsfolk move toward ousting the three anti-Hallin members of the school board, or clipping their majority powers, were heard today.

While under the rules governing the committee there is no provision for impeachment, citizens have discovered two methods by which anti-Hallin members might be forced to resign or e shorn of their power.

Under one method, 100 Saugus voters may sign a petition and present it to the Town Committee of 240 members, and the Town Committee then may request one or more members of the school board to resign.

Citizens may also petition the selectmen to turn a petition over to the Legislature on the question of increasing the school board personnel to as high as nine members.

VOTERS PLAN ACTION

Attorney Daniel J. Canning, counsel for blonde Isabelle, admitted today that a number of voters have conferred with him relative to both these actions.

Miss Hallin, who collapsed Saturday, was unable to attend the meeting, where her fate, under Saugus school committee rules, was settled.

She was cleared of all intimations of a "cocktail party" at her home for members of the cast of the dramatic club.

PLANS LAW SUIT

Boos, jeers and catcalls marked the meeting.

Immediate plans for a writ of mandamus to the Supreme Court were set in motion by her counsel, Attorney Daniel J. Canning of Lynn, to compel her reinstatement on the grounds that the committee acted "not in good faith."

Chief John T. Stuart of the Saugus police, personally supervised a picked detail in handling the crowds at the meeting.

At the outset no one was allowed to enter the high school building save the members of the school committee, Superintendent of Schools Vernon W. Evans, John A. W. Pearce, principal of the high school, and Attorney Daniel J. Canning, counsel for Miss Hallin. Later the public was admitted.

Chairman George A. McCarrier then announced that the gathering was there on the invitation of the school committe given by unanimous vote and asserted that any person who cared to speak would be heard.

Attorney Canning then stated that he would suggest that any talk in favor of Miss Hallin be waived as he stated it appeared obvious that most of those present were in favor of the embattled teacher.

ASKS HEARING JULY 20

School Committeeman Haley then moved that it be voted by the School Committee that a public hearing be granted to Miss Hallin on July 20 at 8 o'clock, at which time all witnesses for and against her be heard and recorded, that she be allowed the right of being represented by counsel, present witnesses in her behalf and have the right to examine all witnesses.

He asked that the motion be voted on a roll call vote.

Speaking on the motion, Committeeman Haley said:

"I deplore the situation that has been created here, tonight, Mr. Chairman, but it is not of my making or of yours. You and I voted at a hearing, in which the vote was recorded as 3 to 2, in favor of granting this girl a public hearing when that motion was turned down.

"On that night the girl, who is not here tonight because of illness, was present. She was kept outside our doors while the vote was taken against her and was never given a chance by us to say a word in her own behalf.

"The stories that have been circulated, too, Mr. Chairman, are none of your doing or of mine.

ASK FAIR PLAY

"They have put an implication on her character and her ability.

"We have seen the result—the press, the clergy and the common people are all clamoring to us in the name of democracy, as American citizens, to give this girl only what she is entitled to—a day at the bar.

"As Reverend Mr. Yeager so well put it, give her only that to which a murderer is entitled—fair play. That is all she asks for. That is all I ask for her. I call for the roll."

A wave of applause and shouts of approval swept through the hall which took several minutes of the gavel banging of Chairman McCarrier to quiet.

School Committeeman Waldo B. Russell, member of the majority who opposed Miss Hallin, who acted as their spokesman, said:

"It was not my intention to speak tonight. I am not an orator like my fellow member of the committee. I cannot do justice to 'the green hills of Maine and the sunny slopes of California.'

"But I do want to say one thing. Some time ago Miss Hallin was apprised of the fact that possibly she might not be elected. She engaged counsel. I have every reason to believe she engaged counsel before the vote was taken.

'OUT OF CONTROL'

"It was at the request of the superintendent of schools that she was given the opportunity to resign. He said if it is apparent she is not going to be elected he thought it fair that she be given the opportunity to resign.

"By acquiescing to that request, it appears, we have let ourselves into a lot of publicity.

"We mean to be fair to Miss Hallin. It was certainly not the majority of the committee that caused all this newspaper talk.

"I have every reason to believe that the first newspaper reports that were given out were given out by herself.

"But her attorney had told me, 'It got out of our control.'

"The majority of the school committee have kept quiet through it all, until possibly today. Today a statement was issued because of the fact that some parents appealed to us that if we knew anything to come out with it. We knew nothing. We spread no rumors. We did not base our vote on rumors.

"Why hold this matter up? What will it accomplish? I will go on record, again, in this matter as my conscience dictates. I will stand by my vote."

Booing and hissing swept the hall as Committeeman Russel concluded.

OTHER CHARGES

Committeeman Haley again took the floor and said:

"I have no intention of quarreling with my colleagues but I do intend right now to recite some bare facts.

"I charge—I charge openly—that six weeks to two months before this case ever came before the school committee it was connived.

"Miss Hallin was on the skids before the case ever came before the school committee.

"Three members of this board never intended to put this girl on tenure. It was intended to let her appointment lay over.

"Why? Thats what I want to know—why?"

Haley read excerpts from the report of Principal Pearse, whom he stated was in constant contact with Miss Hallin, showing that her scholarship, personality, ability to get along with teachers, parents and pupils, her tact and other qualities were of high order.

It described her ability as a dramatic coach as "exceptional."

SAYS IT WAS "CONNIVED"

He described as a "prophetic statement" the remark read from the report of Superintendent Evans:

"In my opinion, failure to re-elect Miss Hallin will do more to harm Saugus than her re-election could conceivably accomplish."

Committeeman Haley said:

"There is nothing against her character. There is nothing against her teaching. I say that this was connived. I say that this was fixed. I say it was done in the School Committee office over the recommendation of the superintendent and principal."

Committeeman Russell retorted:

"I know this audience is, doubtless, hostile to the majority. It has been worked up that way. It has been canvassed. But we can take it.

"At a meeting long ago this course was decided as the best way out. If the explanation that I am conniving—if it is meant for me—if I am classed as a conniver, I deny it.

"The first time I heard any rumors about Miss Hallen was a reception to Mr. Peckham at a church in Cliftondale. I gave her no thought at any time.

"SITTING PRETTY"

"I challenge the statement that three people are conniving against her. I haven't based my opinion on rumors. I know nothing about publicity getting out of control. She posed for pictures time and time again. She gave out fan mail and so forth.

"Sure I'm an old fossil and old fogy, but I can take it. But if you expect my vote, don't give it out.

"Yes, she could be named to an elective teaching post with all its possibilities.

"But how much harm would it do the system to bring her back when she is larger than all the rest of them combined.

"If I were she I would think I was sitting pretty with a victory like that."

Then he cited a part of the Pearce report wherein it was stated that the principal thought her more interested in dramatics than in teaching English.

He stated that reports said that "too many outside activities" detracted from her class work and that she did not rank the pupils daily. Russell said that a substitute sent in to teach for her while she was out, found her daily pupil ranking three weeks behind.

Chairman McCarrier said that he voted for a public hearing, signed the statement in support of Miss Hallin with Haley and still stood on that position.

The vote was taken with Haley and McCarrier casting the first votes as "yes."

When the name of School Committeewoman Maria E. Smith, 74-year-old teacher, was called, she said:

"No! What does she want more than this?"

Russell and Wentworth voted with her.

WALDO B. RUSSELL MARIA E. SMITH

Maria E. Smith and Waldo B. Russell, members of the Saugus school committee, are two of the three members to vote against a public hearing for Miss Isabelle Hallin, in the teacher's fight for reinstatement in Saugus high school. Miss Hallin plans court action. The third member of the board who voted against a public hearing was Harry Wentworth.

Although blonde Isabella Hallin (above), Saugus school teacher who has been given "an opportunity to resign," has been refused a public hearing by the Saugus school board, she will continue her battle in the courts. With Isabella secluded in a rest home, the board voted 3 to 2 against her last night.

PAUL HALEY GEORGE McCARRIER

Two members of the Saugus school committee are among her loyal defenders against "cocktail party" and inefficiency rumors. These two, Paul Haley and Chairman George McCarrier, were outvoted, however, in their attempt to secure a public hearing for the dramatics instructor.

Army Men Hurt

Santa Ana, Cal., July 14 (U.S.)—Three army men from March Field were injured here when the truck in which they were riding overturned three times. A blow out was responsible for the accident. The injured: Sergeant George Rutter, Private John B. Spires and Private K. V. Willet.

Bus Man's Death Ruled Accident

A finding of "death by accidental manner" was reported today by Judge William A. Murray in Newton court in an inquest into the death of Donald M. Aselton, bus company official, found unconscious on the lawn of his home at 3 Kilburn road, West Newton, May 18.

Aselton died five days later at Newton hospital of a skull fracture and spinal injuries.

His wife told police Aselton had gone to put the car in the garage about 3 a. m. A screen broken in a second story window above the place where he was found led to the inquest.

Hearst Mission Lauded; Britain Hit in Palestine

Assailing the verdict of the British Royal Commission as "unfair" in their plans to slice up the Holy Land into independent states, one for 400,000 Jews, and the other for 950,000 Arabs, Jewish leaders in this section, had nothing but high praise today for William Randolph Hearst's unofficial commission which conducted a survey in Palestine last summer.

This commission, composed of United States Senators Royal S. Copeland, of New York, Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware and Warren O. Austin of Vermont reported that practically all the progress in the Holy Land during the past 20 years has been the result of Jewish endeavor.

A corridor, controlled by British mandate, is part of the plan proposed by the British Commission's report.

TO BREAK PROMISE

The Hearst commission report recommended that the British government adhere to its promise, made in 1924, to establish a "national homeland" for millions of persecuted Jews in all parts of the world. Thousands of Jews flocked to Palestine because of that promise, which, it is now proposed, shall be broken.

Attorney George J. Bergman of 11 Beacon street, former United States Commissioner in Vermont said:

"I have always admired the Irish for the wonderful fight they made to win their freedom. The present attitude of the British government toward the Jew is about the same that it was toward the Irish.

"The proposal to divide Palestine, which in area is about as large as Vermont, is in essence unjust.

"It takes a small territory and confines forever the scope and hope of a people who in all good faith accepted the mandate for what it said, to wit: the historic right of the Jewish people to reconstitute its national life in Palestine. The word 'reconstitute' is significant.

RSTRICT IMMIGRATION

"The original mandate included Transjordania. This was subsequently disassociated and Jews not permitted to settle in it. This arrangement was reluctantly entered into by the Jewish people in hope that at least the remainder would be left free for the Jews to develop.

"That was not to be. Immigration of Jews was restricted by the quota while wandering Arabs from other lands were unmolestingly finding their way into prosperous Palestine.

"And now they propose to slice off two-thirds of Palestine, hook it onto Transjordania and hand it over lock and key to the Arabs, who, they freely admit, terrorize their neighbors.

"At the peace conference this whole question was thoroughly gone into and as a result Iraq, Mesoptamia, Hedjes, and finally Transjordania, were established as Arab lands. This arrangement was deliberately entered into.

"The mandate specifically pledges to encourage the establishment of the Jewish National Home in order to give public notice that 'The historic connection of the Jews with Palestine' is recognized and made part of international law, and that whatever claims the Arabs might have had were provided for by granting them the countries of Hedjes, Mesoptamia, Iraq and finally Transjordania.

"The mandate does not promise an Arab National Home in Palestine. It merely speaks of the religious and civil rights of non-Jewish communities.

WORDS OMITTED

"It deliberately omitted the words 'political rights.' The Arabs under Turkey had no political rights to speak of. And until four battalions of the Jewish Legion, under Lord Allenby, freed Palestine from the Turks, the Arabs in Palestine were politically unrepresented. For that reason the word 'political' was omitted deliberately.

"The mandate did not contemplate political rights for the Arabian Palestine since a Jewish National Home and not an Arab National Home is to be 'reconstituted' as per terms of the mandate.

"On the promise of the 52 nations the Jews sent the finest of their manhood and womanhood. Into the malaria-infested swamps they went. Hundreds fell victims to that dread disease. But they would not leave. Today flourishing colonies are in evidence wherever Jews are in Palestine.

BACK TO SWAMPS

"Now it is proposed to turn back two-thirds of Palestine to the swamp-land—to malaria and trachoma.

"Anti-semitism is rampant. The Jew has always been more or less subjected to it. He withstood it because he trusted that some day his grandchildren would have the opportunity to 'return' to Palestine.

"'Return' is significant. The present proposal would forever cut off such a hope for the millions in Poland, Germany and other countries who are daily being subjected to humiliation.

"Where shall these people turn to? Will Nazi Germany extend a helping hand?

"England must hear from decent men and women who will not remain calloused in the face of need of the Jewish people for opportunity to live as free men."

HELD UNPRACTICAL

Judge J. J. Kaplan of Boston said:

"The report of the Royal Commission shows an intelligent and sympathetic study of the problems involved.

"Many of the proposals of the Commission are excellent and should be supported. Insofar, however, as the Commission proposes a reduction of the territory available for development as the Jewish National Homeland from the present to an area which is hardly larger than the state of Delaware, it proposes something which is neither practical nor is it justified by the mandate or the facts which the Commission has found.

"The results which the Commission seeks to accomplish can be readily accomplished without material shrinkage in the available territory."

NOT TO RECALL FITZGERALD IN CODMAN QUIZ

In a surprise move, the finance commission announced this afternoon that John I. Fitzgerald, city council president, will not be recalled as a witness when the hearing into alleged "gift contracts" made by the city to the Codman Hill Construction Company resumes tomorrow morning.

No reason was given by Robert E. Cuniff, secretary of the finance commission, who made the announcement.

Fitzgerald, a trustee of the George White Fund, from which came the repair awards, occupied the stand most of yesterday, offering testimony which was the highlight of the hearing thus far.

He testified that circumstances surrounding the awarding of contracts to the company on several occasions now appeared "strange" to him.

It was believed that Attorney George R. Farnum, conducting the probe for the finance commission, would recall Fitzgerald and ask why he, as acting mayor, on two occasions approved invoices for payment of substantial sums of money to the Codman company.

Cunniff, however, announced that the witnesses tomorrow would be John Welch, foreman of the construction company; Thomas Flynn, building inspector in charge of the waterproofing work done by the Codmand Company in a Boylston street building owned by the White Fund, and John F. Hickey, former chairman of the board of examiners of the city building department, who is now retired.

If there is sufficient time, Cunniff stated, George Driscoll, secretary of the White Fund, will also be called. If not, Cunniff added, Driscoll will take the stand Friday.

AMELIA SEARCH SHIFTS WEST

the Gilbert Islands group, about 600 miles west of Howland Island. The islands are the Arorai, Nukunau, Tamana, Onotoa, Peru and Tapetuea.

Navy officials said the Swan and Itasca should reach this search area tomorrow.

Fliers of the aircraft carrier Lexington awaited passing of a tropical storm today before resuming their "last chance" search for the missing pair, who disappeared on a flight from New Guinea to Howland Island July 2.

The storm forced cancellation of an afternoon flight yesterday, after 60 planes fruitlessly had scanned 21,000 square miles of the South Pacific during the forenoon.

"Somewhere" in the 265,000 square miles of search area the pair was forced down, out of fuel, after missing the coral islet which lifts itself only two feet above the ocean.

The Lexington's 60 planes took off while the carrier was 120 miles northwest of Howland and sped southward. They took up positions two miles apart in two divisions one on each side of the Lexington. Each pilot was accompanied by an observer.

The planes returned at 5 p. m. (E. D. T.), refueled, and were preparing to extend the hunt when the sudden tropical storm halted the flight.

Rear Admiral O. G. Murfin, directing the search, said beginning today no more than 42 planes would be engaged in the hunt. The others, he said, would be kept aboard the Lexington for overhauling and refueling.

Navy officials indicated the search would probably end after Saturday's patrol by the Lexington's planes.

By Saturday evening, depending upon the weather, the navy fliers hope to scan 182,000 square land miles and include in their search the Gilbert Islands, about 600 miles west of Howland.

'Birth Control' Case Finding Deferred

Salem, July 14—A test case which threatens to ban continuation of contraceptive aid to married women in Massachusetts by physicians was being studied today by Judge George B. Sears of the district court.

Following a four-hour hearing affecting three officers of the North Shore Mothers' Health Office of Salem, a clinic sponsored by prominent social leaders, doctors and clergymen, Judge Sears announced he would reserve decision. He will hand down his finding in the next few days.

In arguing for the defendants, Dr. Lucile Lord-Heinstein of Dorchester; Mrs. Flora Rand, Brookline nurse, and Mrs. Carolyn T. Gardner, social service worker for the clinic and wife of a prominent Salem physician, Attorney Robert G. Dodge of Boston contended the medical profession has the right to distribute contraceptives which benefit the health and safety of married women.

Backing Dodge's statement to the court was Dr. Robert De Normandie of Boston, who declared the health of his patients was paramount to everything even the law.

Declaring the law made no exceptions, City Solicitor James Kinsella pressed for conviction of the three smartly-attired defendants, insisting distribution of birth control devices was illegal and the court had no alternative to conviction. Kinsella stated the legislature alone has the power to liberalize the statutes.

NORTON BEFORE GRAND JURY IN ELDER PROBE

Greenfield, July 14—In a tense atmosphere and with extraordinary precautions having been taken to prevent interference with witnesses, the Franklin County grand jury today took up the assault charge against Thomas E. Elder, retired dean of Mt. Hermon school.

Called to the grand jury room at start of the proceedings was S. Allan Norton, former Mt. Hermon school cashier, who accuses Elder of threatening him with a shotgun at Norton's home on May 25.

Another witness appeared just before Norton entered the grand jury room, not long before noon.

She was Mrs. Edith G. Weymouth, who testified at the district court session when Elder was held for the grand jury.

Among other witnesses, it was expected would be Miss Yvonne Arsenault, servant in a home next to Norton.

There were also to be included, it was understood, two Greenfield policemen and a state trooper.

Norton and Elder were co-workers with Dr. Elliott Speer, Mt. Hermon headmaster, who was slain by a shotgun blast as he sat in his home in 1934.

Boy Finds Missing Sister, Headed for Sherborn

Framingham, July 14—Missing from home since last November 20-year-old Dorothy Rivers of Cetre street, Roxbury, was claimed today by her brother, Arthur 18. But it was too late—for the me, anyhow.

She and two other girls who had escaped from Sherborn reformory last Sunday night, only to be recaptured in Stratford, Ct., on Tuesday, were each sentenced to serve five years more in addition to original sentences.

The defendants were the Rivers girl—under the name of Dothy Perry—Dorothy Stewart, 1 of Leavitt street, Brockton, and Loretta Saucier, 20, of South Main street, Fall River.

Through a Boston Evening American reporter, Arthur Perry was apprised of the possibility that the sister he had sought for so many months was one of the three girls who was facing court here.

His sister had vanished on November 20, 1936, telling Arthur and his mother, Mrs. Theresa Rivers, that she was "going on a date." Since that night, when she didn't return, both have tried every way to find the girl.

It took but one look to tell young Rivers that the escape in Sherborn was the sister he sought. But it was too late. He will only carry the news back to his widowed mother.

Brother and sister embraced for a moment, whispered a few words—then parted.

90-DEGREE HEAT WAVE 'UNCONSTITUTIONAL'

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Down in the Senate the overheated lads regard compromise as weakness and substitutions as fraud.

In the meantime, teacher is keeping the boys after school until they can add six to nine.

We again warn the nation against legislation during a heat wave. Don't forget that biscuits are in an oven because somebody else did their thinking for them.

There is a popular song entitled "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off." How about making that our national anthem for a couple of weeks?

In addition to checking the votes, they should also take the temperature. If it's over 90 in the shade, then the whole thing is unconstitutional.

BOSTON GETS QUICK ENERGY PICK-UP WITH NEW SUMMER DRINK

HERE'S HOW TO MAKE IT

DRINK A BANANA—drink its golden goodness, its tantalizing flavor. Here's how:

Take a fully ripe banana (yellow peel flecked with brown) and one cup cold milk. Slice the banana into a bowl and beat with rotary egg beater or electric mixer until creamy. Add milk, mix thoroughly . . . sip, and feel royally refreshed!

If you like drinks sweet, add sugar or ice cream. If you like 'em very cold, add crushed ice!

TIME OUT FOR LUNCH for Elizabeth Holmes after a morning of tennis at the club. It's a lunch that shows her good sense . . . crackers and that meal-in-a-glass . . . a nourishing, satisfying Banana Milk Shake.

"FEELING FINE, THANK YOU," smiles Lucy Snow, snapped at McNeily's Stables, Newton. Her favorite drink . . . the new Banana Milk Shake!

By BETTY ALDEN

THE NEW DOOR of St. John's Episcopal Church in Beverly Farms, which will be dedicated next Sunday morning by Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, Bishop of Massachusetts, will exhibit its beauty and practicality to a large circle of beholders during the summer . . . A number of society weddings, to say nothing of the annual St. John's fair, will draw a far wider circle of admirers to the church than just the regular parishioners . . .

RAMELLE COCHRANE

The Saturday following the dedication, Rose Whitman will be married in St. John's to Channing Frothingham, Jr. . . . and a week from the following Tuesday, August 3, Eugenie Grew and Alexander Cochrane will be married there at a noon ceremony . . .

Eugenie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph C. Grew of Marlborough street and Manchester, and her future bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. F. Douglas Cochrane of Commonwealth avenue, who have a summer home at Northeast Harbor . . .

One could easily imagine that Ramelle Cochrane would love to play the wedding march at her brother's wedding, for she is a very accomplished musician . . . but she is to be maid of honor instead . . . with Marie Turner, a famous young sportswoman, and Ann Pemberton, who made her debut the same year as Eugenie, serving as bridesmaids . . .

Richard Stackpole, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Stackpole, will be the best man and there will be four ushers . . . John M. Bleakie, Standish Van Voorhis, Samuel G. Atkinson and Charles T. Russell, Jr. . . .

Following the wedding the bridal couple will receive their friends at the Essex County Club . . .

Miss Grew attended Beaver Country Day School and the Fox Hollow School in Rhinebeck, N. Y. . . . She is a niece of Joseph Clark Grew, ambassador to Japan . . .

Mr. Cochrane attended Groton School and the University of Vermont and is now engaged in the brokerage business in Boston . . . He belongs to the Union Boat Club, the Tennis and Racquet and the Exchange Clubs . . .

Pleon Yacht Stars Seek Championship

THE BEST AND HOPEFUL WISHES of members of the Pleon Yacht Club of Marblehead, and perhaps of a few graduates of Amherst College, are in Nova Scotia today with Lorne McKinnon and Samuel Wells of Marblehead . . . Last week these young yachtsmen won the championship of the Pleon and the right to represent their club in the Prince of Wales junior championship races at Yarmouth, N. S. . . .

They sailed Monday evening and are now in Yarmouth making preparations to compete with the pick of the junior yachtsmen in the United States and Canada . . .

This year the Pleon Yacht Club is celebrating its 50th anniversary, so its members are particularly anxious to see its representatives make a good showing . . . the club was one of the first independent junior yachting organizations in this country and was largely responsible for the growth of the present day popularity of junior class competition . . .

Amherst men have a sentimental interest in the success of McKinnon and Wells, for they won their championship last week in a T class boat called Sabrina . . . which is the name of the elusive statuary maiden who has been the toast of Amherst students for generations . . . The youthful Marblehead sailors will not be able to sail their own yacht, at Yarmouth, however . . . for the racing craft will be furnished by the local organization and the various teams will draw for their boats before the races get under way next Tuesday . . .

Cohasset Yacht Club's juniors will be represented in the races at Yarmouth by Louis Cabot, son of the Paul Cabots of Needham, and William Binnian, his sailing partner . . .

Janet Murchie to Wed in August

THERE IS GREAT PREPARATION going on in the Guy Murchie home in Dedham for the wedding in August of Mr. Murchie's daughter, Janet, to William Henry Howard of San Francisco . . . The bride-to-be is the sister of Donald Murchie of Framingham, Mrs. Charles Hitchcock of New Canaan, Conn., and of Guy Murchie, Jr., who lives in Chicago . . . those of you who keep tabs on society doings, will remember that several years ago Guy married Mrs. Forrester Parker, mother of one of Guy's classmates at Harvard . . . Mrs. Murchie, Jr., who is expected on for the wedding, will kill two birds with one stone and make a visit at the same time, with her sister, Mrs. Ronald Lyman, in Dark Harbor . . .

Mr. Howard, Janet's prospective bridegroom, is a nephew of John K. Howard and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Silsbee Whitwell of Boston . . .

Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, who have been visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Nicholas Brown, at her villa in Newport, are going to Fishers Island in a few days . . . Mrs. Brown, Sr., gave a tea yesterday afternoon at which her sister, Mrs. Lillian Lee Biddle, presented a program of dramatic recitations . . . Mr. and Mrs. Paul FitzSimmons of Newport are sojourning for a few days at their Chester, N. H., residence . . .

Marblehead's yachting flotilla is somewhat diminished this week by the absence of Herbert M. Sears' yacht Constellation, which is on a cruise to the Eastward, and the Ernest B. Dane's Vanda which was at anchor at Fort Sewall over the week-end, has cleared for Newport with members of the Dane family aboard.

Emmanuel, Notre Dame Grads to Conduct Fetes

Stocks in alma mater affairs are rising steadily despite a mid-summer lethargy induced by vacation plans and warm weather.

In the next fortnight Emmanuel College and Boston Academy of Notre Dame will keep its graduates busy with arrangements for two different alumnae activities.

Emmanuel College alumnae is occupied with plans for the establishment of a placement bureau at the college in the Fenway. Arousing interest among the members of the young set is the summer soiree for the grads of Boston Academy of Notre Dame slated for a week from Friday at the South Shore Country Club.

GUIDANCE BUREAU

Final plans for the establishment of the vocational guidance bureau at the college will be made at a meeting of the group this evening at the Hotel Bellevue. This will bring to a close the series of conferences which have been held to aid students in obtaining positions.

Mary L. Guyton of Brookline, state supervisor of Adult Alien Education is chairman of the council, and planning a series of lectures to be given at intervals to students during the collegiate year is Alice Johnson of Cambridge.

Already three-fifths of the $10,000 drive has been realized under the capable direction of Louise Boulard of Worcester, chairman of the financial committee.

Other active alumnae serving on the committee are Anne McNamara of Melrose, originator of the idea, Clair Martell of South Boston, Marie Glennon of Jamaica Plain, Margaret Hinchey of Waltham, Margaret Denning of Brookline and Mildred Crowley of West Roxbury.

NOTRE DAME PARTY

The Notre Dame party at the South Shore Country Club is providing the topic of chit-chat for the grads of the school who are scattered along the South Shore resorts.

With the committee concocting novel ideas under Betty Crosby's adroit direction, the party on the 23d is going to be the highlight of the mid-summer calendar.

Mary I. Sullivan and Marguerite Daley are bringing a group over from Green Harbor for the dance. Edith and Marion McPeake are busy interesting uptown young-setters in the affair.

A patroness list is being compiled by Elizabeth Dyer, Catherine Monahan, Madeleine McAndrew, Eileen McDonald, Maura Gallagher, Helen Hogan and Joan Lapin.

Betty McCarthy of Belmont and Peggy O'Neill of Cambridge depart Saturday for Warrensburg, fashionable summer resort in the Adirondacks. Betty is active in Rosary Academy alumnae affairs.

Bound for the summer in Miami, Fla., are Mrs. Anne Doherty and her daughter Kay, who will spend the remainder of the season as the guests of Mrs. Frederic Lenk, the former Helen Doherty, who came on to attend the wedding of her sister Rose, to Edward Dullea.

The groom's brother, Rev. Michael Dullea of Holy Cross, performed the ceremony which took place at St. Mary's Church in Cambridge and was followed by a small reception at the Hotel Continental.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved. Distributed by Universal Service)

Whenever we see a new restaurant, or lunch room, or barbecue stand starting up anywhere, we feel like giving it a blessing. We always hope it prospers.

It is our thought that every new restaurant, or other eating place, is another step toward the final emancipation of American women from that bondage known as cooking for the family. We hold that cooking, save as a salaried occupation, or in cases of downright necessity, is a species of enslavement of womankind.

Damon Runyon

When a man tells us that his wife, or mother, is a wonderful cook, we never doubt his statement, but we have a mental picture of a poor lady steaming in a hot kitchen by the weary hour to uphold that reputation. She is likely to be tired and sweltering testimony to the selfishness and inconsiderateness of man.

FEW JOYOUS COOKS

We are told that some women enjoy cooking. That they get the keenest pleasure out of fussing around a kitchen catering to the gastronomical whims of their man. We presume that this is true, within limits. As a matter of fact, we have known women who seemed to love to occasionally juggle the pots and pans in a display of their culinary proficiency. We do not believe however, that any considerable number of women enjoy cooking as a steady diet, day in and day out, year without end. It is not human nature.

In this country, there are households in which three meals a day are served, breakfast, dinner, and supper, or breakfast, luncheon and dinner, however they title them.

They are not infrequently all good husky meals, tossed up by one pair of feminine hands, and partaken of by father and the children, who rarely take note of any extra pains that may have been bestowed upon their fodder by the cook, and who practically never express their thanks.

More often than not, nowadays, the relish of the children for their chow is somewhat tempered by a little offhand nibbling between meals at school, or down town, of sweets, and by a slight dosage of soft drinks, and father, too, may have knocked the edge off his appetite with a couple of drams of something, so they do not pay mother even the compliment of eating her spread. Thus in addition to being enslavement, family cooking is apt to be a mighty thankless task.

IT'S AN OLD CUSTOM

It is a custom more than anything else, this family cooking, save, of course, in cases of economic necessity. It is a custom that goes back to the pioneer days when families gathered at one table, perforce.

For some reason, cooking has always been accounted essentially a woman's occupation. Yet it is our guess that the Lord did not intend women to do the cooking else why did he give them those delicate hands and that soft skin so easily ruined over a hot stove? Else why are men instinctively far greater cooks?

Of course you do not catch many men doing the family cooking. When a man cooks, save as a passing whim, he gets paid good wages for it, and it is conceivable that men are better cooks than women because they have greater incentive for professional pride. But it is a cinch that they are also better equipped by nature for cooking than women, physically, and perhaps temperamentally.

In any event, in this day of innumeral restaurants, lunch rooms, and drug store counters dispensing food, we think the burden of family cooking should be materially lightened for the ladies. That is, if we can arouse the gentlemen to a sense of courtesy and consideration.

LET 'EM EAT OUT

We hold that breakfast and luncheon are a sheer imposition upon housewives, except perhaps in country districts where the institutions mentioned do not abound. There is no excuse for the average urban citizen requiring these meals at home. He can get them more rapidly and cheaply down town. If he must have his dinner at home, all right. But let the old gal sleep on o'mornings.

We rather expect to be assailed by some of our lady readers for this view. They will tell us that never, never would they think of allowing husband to leave the house without a nice warm breakfast in his stomach.

We assure these ladies that husband will probably do all right about breakfast in some clean, white foodery down town with mayhap a winsome lassie in a neat blue uniform, and no small gossip of household or neighborhood affairs on her mind, to look after him.

We do not care to make a point of the matter, but we are convinced that a man breakfasting under these kindly auspices is better prepared for his daily battle with the cruel world, than if he has to fare forth laden with hurried eggs and hasty coffee, and dire tidings of bills, and junior's misconduct.

However, if any ladies insist on going on with the family cooking it is all right with us. We are merely trying to be helpful.

Girls Are Gold-Diggers In Many Cases and Don't Realize It

The number of letters which have come to this column concerning graduation presents, make me wonder if some girls are gold-diggers and don't know it.

They write and ask if books, desk-sets, fountain-pen and pencil sets, kodaks or brief cases are handsome enough reminders of the great occasion on which they "finished" their education.

All of this makes one wonder if their social education has really even begun, because it is not good form for girls to receive very expensive gifts from boys, unless they happen to be engaged to them.

I'm sure these girls are not conscious gold-diggers, and the beautiful sentiments they think they cherish for the boy friend are something more than a lively interest in future benefits. But the excitement of being girl graduates has gone to their heads, until their point of view is not unlike that of small children rooting through the tissue paper and ribbons on Christmas morning, and asking if there isn't "something more."

A gentle reminder to girls who wonder if graduation gifts are good enough is the cold fact that boys whose ages match their own have not, as a rule, much more money to spend. They are still on a parental allowance, or have just begun to earn a little on their own, and cannot be expected to make expensive presents, even if such were not in bad taste.

GIRL GIVES CONSTANTLY

This is not true of all girls. I know know, Indeed, it's often the other way around, when girls spend money on boy friends which they should spend on themselves, or tuck away in a Postal Savings account.

Time and time again, girls entertain boys at their houses and never get the smallest attention in return, not even a cheap movie. And a girl who gives constantly, but never expects or gets any "treats" in return, is not very far removed from the doormat sisterhood.

But there is no denying that another type of girl exists—the gold-digger—whose little hand has a greedy capacity to close over anything valuable, and then reach for more. She has always been with us, this greedy type of woman. In the Bible, she's spoken of as the daughter of a horse leech, crying "Give, Give."

PRIZE GOLD-DIGGER

The grade "A" gold-digger of my experience wrote me, not long ago, that she was breaking her engagement with a young man because he won a cheap glass cake-plate at a church bazaar, and gave it to his mother. He had given this girl all sorts of expensive presents, including a diamond engagement ring, a watch, a chain and pendant and various handsome presents for their future home. But she was breaking with him on account of the "principle of the thing." As if such a little gold-digger had even a bowing acquaintance with principle!

She confided that the dish was not worth more than 50 cents anyhow, but she couldn't understand why her fiance gave it to his mother instead of to her. Yet she didn't like the idea of returning the jewelry to her fiance, if she should make up her mind to break the engagement.

I wrote and told her that among people of good taste all presents were returned when an engagement was broken. She wrote me, by air mail, a day or two later, saying she had thought the matter over and decided to keep the presents and also the young man.

Now that's what I consider a grade "A" gold-digger.

Tar Soap—Yeast Facial Pack

ARE you bothered with blackheads and pimples on the back? Now that the swimming season is in full swing, you'll want to turn a flawless pair of shoulders on the world. If your back is badly blemished—don't be discouraged. It can be corrected. We have a formula for a Yeast-and-Tar Soap-Pack that is unexcelled for clearing up a pimply condition. In fact, it is equally effective for any part of the body so disfigured. We have seen disfiguring blemishes disappear after a single week's treatment. Include Meat In Infant's Menu

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

PROTEINS, minerals, vitamins and fat found in meat make this food a suitable and desirable item in the diet of every normal child.

Mothers often ask if meat is a healthful food. Should they give it to their children?

Let me say the scientists agree that a certain amount of meat is valuable for the child a year old. As he grows older, the amount given is gradually increased.

For centuries meat has been an important part of the diet of mankind all over the world. It is found to be just as essential in the well-balanced diet of the child.

A government publication compiled by the children's bureau of the United States department of labor is devoted to child care and training.

In this pamphlet the food habits of children are intelligently discussed. It suggests that a serving of meat or fish be given the child daily after he reaches the age of 18 months.

SUITABLE MEATS

Tender cuts of chicken, beef, lamb, bacon, calves' liver, or beef liver, are suitable for children. All types of chicken may be included in the diet. It may be boiled, broiled or roasted. The white and dark meat of chicken are equally nutritious.

Calves' liver, beef liver or chicken liver, broiled or baked, is healthful and wholesome. For the very young child, mind the liver. The older child is able to chew this food if it is cut in small pieces.

The inexpensive cuts of lamb are just as suitable as the expensive cuts in the children's diet. Broiled lamb chops are excellent for the very young child. Later, roast lamb and lamb stew may be added to this menu. Be sure the lamb is well cooked and tender.

Protein is found in rich amounts in meat.

The minerals supplied by meat include liberal amounts of phosphorus and adequate amounts of iron and lime. Minerals such as these build strong bones and teeth.

One WEEK Elimination DIET

By ARLINE GOULD

MORE and more are we convinced that the only way to really get rid of fat is to go hungry for a while.

We're not at all in favor of diets that half-starve you to death, of course, or accomplish such drastic weight changes that when you look in the mirror (after a period of mundane existence on chops and pineapple) you mistake your own image for a frightened-looking zombie.

Should you be one of those who finds excess weight completely burdensome and a hot-weather trial, dieting is unquestionably the best solution.

For one thing, arduous exercise won't appeal to you if you are badly on the corpulent side. If you've got 30 pounds to lose—even 40 or maybe 50—you'll be in no mood to wrestle with a lot of tiring gymnastics when the mercury hovers aroun' the 100 mark.

* * *

Better master a bit of self-control at the dinner table and at the same time get acquainted with a really scientific diet that will not only melt away the pounds but recapture some of youth's lost freshness and verve.

You've probably been hearing a good bit lately about elimination diets. The vogue for this type of reducing regime sprung up in England a few years ago (and with such successful results) that is it now the fad all over Europe.

* * *

Not only does it reduce scientifically, swiftly and safely, but it does positively magic things for the complexion. It is practically a fruit-bullion affair and as such must be prescribed for one week only. After you've lost the required amount of weight you can return to the diet for one day each month. This prevents further poundage from creeping back.

* * *

We won't guarantee that you won't feel an occasiona hungry moment while you are in the meshes of this diet, but we will assure you that it will get you thin again. It is the diet being featured by a famous Fifth avenue reducing salon, and as we said before it does as magic things for the skin as it does for the figure.

* * *

To obtain this brand new One-Week Elimination Diet merely write to Arline Gould, Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CHAPTER XVIII

"I do, and it proves that work is a bad habit."

"I am sorry that you met me—I mean Susie, last night. You'll never get this novel finished."

Freddy was too sleepy to catch the break Margery made. But he came back to the study.

"Really, I don't like to tear you away from that important work, but do you realize, Mr. Matthews, that you haven't dictated two pages of really good material this morning?"

"I have an idea," he said, "get out the old notebook."

"That's the idea, get more work done," Margery encouraged.

"What kind of flowers does Susie like?"

"American beauties, but what . . ."

"Make a note to send her a dozen."

"A dozen?"

"No, make it FIVE dozen."

"But, Mr. Matthews . . ."

"Don't you dare say 'work' to me again today or I shall collapse. You see, I hope to meet Susie . . ."

The telephone bell interrupted him.

"Perhaps that is Susie, now, here, give it to me."

MISS LANSING!

He took the instrument and sat on the edge of the desk, saying, with cooing, almost cloying sweetness, "Hello-o-o-o!"

But it wasn't "Susie" at all. Margery guessed, the moment she saw the expression on his face, that it was Camille Lansing.

He covered the transmitter with his hand and hissed. "It's Miss Lansing. I had a dinner date with her last night and forgot all about it. What shall I tell her?"

"Why not," Margery suggested, coldly, "tell her that you couldn't keep the date as you were out with another girl?"

"You're a great help," he exclaimed. Then he spoke into the transmitter: "Hello, sweetheart."

Camille Lansing spoke so shrilly and harshly that Margery, sitting so near, could hear it plainly.

"So you stood me up again, Freddy Matthews!" Camille rasped.

"Er—did I, darling?" Freddy replied.

"Don't pull that—"

"So sorry, couldn't get away. I was completely wrapped up in my book," he tried to explain.

"Are you sure," Camille shouted, "that it was your book you were wrapped up in?"

Hearing this, Margery realized that Camille didn't intend to give Freddy Matthews up.

"Not tonight—working, Camille," Freddy told her.

"You and your old book!" Camille screamed. Margery could hear the "click" as she hung up on him.

"She doesn't seem to trust me," Freddy said, with a grin.

"Incredible!"

Margery said this with so much acidity that Freddy stared at her, puzzled.

"Oh yes, now to get back to—"

"Work," Margery cut in. Freddy groaned.

"POSITIVELY CRUEL"

"Not work—I'm all worked out today. Now to get back to Susie. In addition to sending her the roses, make a note to 'phone for theater tickets, and also reserve a table at The Golden Gate Club for 11 o'clock tonight and —"

"Pardon me for interrupting, Mr. Matthews," Margery said, giving him a rather grim smile, "but if you are planning to devote a great deal of time, thought and attention to Susie Rogers, you might as well give up the idea."

"Never!"

"You will have to, Mr. Matthews."

"But why?"

"Because Susie left town this morning and will be gone several weeks, at least two weeks."

"Susie gone? Oh, I say, she shouldn't have done that, Miss Morrison."

"But she has."

"That is positively cruel. Imagine this shock [illegible]

I am sure you will [illegible], Mr. Matthews."

"But didn't she send me any message through you, Miss Morrison?"

"Why should she?"

"Well, after all, I planned—I told her last night—gone away for a fortnight? That's horrible."

"You will have your novel finished, Mr. Matthews—"

"Oh hang the novel. By the way, did she go far? Just where did she go?"

"She went to—er—Monterey—yes, that's it, I am sure, to Monterey."

Alonzo entered at this point.

"Miss Belden, sir," he announced.

THEY'RE ALL black beauties . . . the hats that flock onto shop counters about this time, offering diversion and change for midsummer fashion appetites.

On the day when you think you can't bear to clutch your big leghorn or your big black tailored cartwheel by the brim another minute, buy something snug and new and very becoming to wear with prints and all town clothes.

Velvet is first. And most becoming. Faille is practical. And for later wear, choose a velour that will go on into midwinter. But whatever fabric, it will be black.

Here's how you wear them: Swept off the side of the head at the left, and dragged down on the right. For berets, newest is off the forehead and dragged to the side-back at right. You'll show all your left profile, whatever the hat. Upward and forward! That's the cry!

Then there's the high or low crown question. Either one, as you wish. But never, never in between! Up she goes . . . or down, down, down!

And the open crown is as done as a bunch of Fourth of July firecrackers.

Married Comrades

CHAPTER 353

THERE was sympathy in my husband's voice as he answered my plaint.

There was also relief, and I guessed that he was glad of any topic that would take my thoughts away from the letter my father had left for me with its terrifying superscription.

With characteristic delicacy, he did not ask to whom I had been telephoning, and I did not believe that the nurse had taken it upon herself to give him the information. So I said quickly:

"Yes, and I want your advice about it. I called Mrs. Ticer because the nurse said that she has been insistent upon seeing father."

Dicky gave a surprise whistle, [illegible]

he asked. [illegible] aware of the fact that you want my advice, but I don't imagine that you waited for me to tell you to make a date with our doughty neighbor."

"No, I didn't," I confessed. "She wanted to know if she should come here, but I told her that I would come over there within the next two hours. I wish you'd come with me."

"I was wondering if you remembered how keen-eyed Mrs. Ticer is and how shrewd? Do you think she may discover my uncle is impersonating my father?"

DANCE FOR SLIM, LOVELY LEGS

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Copyright, 1937, King Features Synd., Inc.

BEAUTIFUL legs, like the proverbial silver spoon, used to be something you were born with or without. Now they're an anatomical asset that can be acquired, in spite of the limbs of your family tree.

More than weight or structure, it's musculature that counts in leg contours.

Take Eleanor Powell . . . this internationally recognized star of tap has long but well-rounded legs. There is not the slightest suggestion of the spindliness that [illegible] and [illegible].

Like Ginger Rogers, [illegible] loses weight in the hard and fast tapping work of making a picture. Yet neither of these stars seems to lose weight in the leg. Because of good musculature their legs retain beautifully molded lines.

That tiny tap star, Eleanore Whitney, has no business with perfect legs—if you consider her weight of a scant 98 pounds including shoes and lipstick.

Yet she has a well-turned calf and ankle, measuring 12¼ inches and 7½ inches, irrespective of weight. To cite still others, there are Ruby Keeler, Jessie Matthews and Dixie Dunbar whose fast-stepping dance rou-

How is it, then, that lovely legs seem to be as characteristic of the stars and feature players as of the dancers? That is a question I asked of Hollywood. The answer, I found, is that almost without exception these stars took dancing in their teens for the suppleness, rhythm and grace it develops. Teens or twenties, there is no better leg exercise than dancing.

Tapping seems to be the perfect exercise, affording stretch and contraction in just the proportions that develop loveliness of thigh, calf and ankle. If you can arrange to take tap-dancing, by all means do so. It is splendid exercise generally, but is particularly valuable in slimming or developing the lower part of the figure.

HOLLYWOOD STARS TELL HOW TO TAP

Musculature, you see, can be built, and since this is true, your legs can be improved remarkably. Here is one exercise which strengthens the muscles and will aid in either your tap or beauty program.

POSITION: Stand with weight on one foot, hands on hips. The other foot should be extended slightly in front of the body.

MOVEMENT: Slowly lower the body to the floor while continuing to balance on the one foot and extending the other leg straight out in front. The object is to be able to squat down on one foot while the other foot is held straight out in front of the body. To begin with, you may find it a good idea to support yourself by holding on to a low table while lowering to the floor. Try this exercise with alternate legs. Start with five times for each leg, then increase to ten times.

Write for [illegible] malizing Exercises," and practice this set daily for an improvement in leg contour. Include a stamped, addressed envelope with your request and mail to Ida Jean Kain, Boston Evening American.

Ripe Olive Slaw Delightful Dish

Many Hostesses Serve It as a Hot-Weather Relish

FROM MARTHA LEE'S WEDNESDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

HAVE you ever watched the disappearance of ripe olives from the relish tray? Although they are popular as food appetizers throughout the year, try them in summertime menus to prod lagging appetites.

Olives come to you packed in tins, immersed in a light brine, which prevents injury in transportation and also serves to emphasize their delicious flavor.

Ripe olives that are not consumed when the tin is first opened should be poured into a bowl and kept in the original brine. This will preserve their flavor and glossy, attractive appearance.

When purchasing olives, please bear in mind the following names which signify size. The size to be purchased will depend upon how you wish to serve them.

Medium—64 in a pint
Large—55 in a pint
Extra Large—46 in a pint
Mammoth—40 in a pint
Giant—32 in a pint
Jumbo—32 in a pint
Colossal—26 in a pint
Super-Colossal—17 in a pint

If you especially like at least a suggestion of garlic with ripe olives thoroughly chilled in epicurean style, one method of preparation is simple and seemingly contradictory, because it starts with heat.

Place the contents of a can of ripe olives, liquor and fruit, in a container over the direct heat, adding a half teaspoon of garlic salt or a small portion of a clove of garlic to the liquid before heating.

Allow the contents to boil for three minutes. Remove any portion of clove or garlic and let the olives cool in the liquor, then chill overnight in a covered container. Serve cold as a relish to accompany cold meat platters and cheese trays, or to give character to the service of salads and sandwiches.

Ripe Olive Hot Slaw is a desirable dish not only for everyday service, but for Sunday night suppers and buffet service.

The daily need for variety in summer salad dressings has added to the popularity of sliced or chopped ripe olives for this purpose.

RIPE OLIVE HOT SLAW

1 medium sized head cabbage
3 canned pimientos
2-3 cup sliced or chopped ripe olives
½ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ cup olive oil
2 eggs
3 tablespoon heavy cream

Shred cabbage (if strong, cover with cold water and allow to stand for about ten minutes; drain). Cut pimiento into strips; combine with cabbage and ripe olives. Combine vinegar, water, salt, sugar, paprika, mustard and olive oil and heat to boiling. Remove from heat and add slowly to eggs and cream that have been beaten together. Return to heat and cook about four to five minutes, stirring constantly. Pour over cabbage-olive mixture and serve immediately. Serves six.

RIPE OLIVE DRESSING FOR VEGETABLE SALAD

1 cup mayonnaise
½ cup sliced or chopped ripe olives
¼ cup chopped American cheese
Few drops Tabasco sauce
Asparagus tips or other vegetable
Lettuce

Combine mayonnaise, ripe olive, cheese, and Tabasco sauce and blend. Arrange asparagus tips on lettuce garnished salad plates and top generously with ripe olive dressing.

Bridge

Dub or Expert

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Some of the most difficult questions in bridge are psychological rather than technical.

An opponent makes a play, let us say, and you have to decide what prompted him to do such a thing.

An example of such a situation arose in a recent team match. Declarer played for a "reaction" by East; but, when he got it, he didn't know what to make of it.

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding was so outlandish as to be ridiculous. His freak distribution enabled West to put in a couple of "nuisance" bids.

West opened the King of diamonds, and South studied the hand a moment before playing a card. The contract obviously depended on losing no more than one trick in the major suits. A successful heart finesse would make the hand very simple, but South had to consider whether or not to take the spade finesse in the event that the heart King was held by West. Normally, a player should finesse for a King when missing three cards in the suit. But South saw a way in which he might get a "reaction" from East. South therefore discarded a heart from dummy on the opening lead, and won in his own hand with the Ace of diamonds. He crossed to the dummy by means of a club, and continued that suit for three rounds.

On the third round of clubs East casually played the nine of spades. South overruffed, and now had to guess whether East really had no interest in the trump suit and therefore lacked the King of spades, or whether East had the King of spades and wanted to convey the impression that the trump suit was of no interest to him.

After having worked so hard to trap East into making a mistake, South had succeeded only in presenting himself with a bigger problem than he had started with. After much staring at the ceiling and scratching his head he decided to play West for the blank King of spades. Needless to say, this lost the slam since South could not then avoid the loss of a spade and a heart.

Make Dreams Come True

Large-Money Purchases Easier to Make

MAKE your dream house come true by budgeting!

With a budget you can eat better, dress better, put more money into big purchases like a car or a house—because planned spending stops up the leaks.

Should you or shouldn't you buy that "bargain-table" white hat you might wear four or five times?

"It's not in the budget," you can say cheerfully. In this friendly way a budget holds down expenses for food, clothing, recreation, and challenges you to make every cent you spend return the greatest value.

Budgeting takes the strain out of home-buying, too. Successful budgeteers say the value of your house should be no more than two and a half times your yearly income.

That is, on an income of $1500 a year, budget to meet the interest on the mortgage, payment on the principal, insurance, taxes and up-keep of a $3750 house.

A budget need not be complicated. It's simply a plan for getting what you want most. Your budget may be quite unlike the budget of the Joneses next door—because you have different needs and tastes.

Our 40-page booklet, HOW TO BUDGET YOUR INCOME, gives details on outlining your own personal spending plan. Ruled pages for your budget accounting. Practical hints on getting the most for your money in food and clothing. Stop aimless spending; make your money count.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, HOW TO BUDGET YOUR INCOME, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 103 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Writely plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

PICKETS DEFIED BY WORKERS IN WORCESTER

Worcester, July 14—In defiance of a superior court injunction, 300 pickets massed around the Reed & Prince steel plant when it re-opened today, but their demonstration failed to halt the reopening.

Between 175 and 200 employes returned to machines that have stood idle since May 25. They made their way in autos and taxicabs through lanes cut in the picket lines by [illegible] police cruiser cars and 42 policemen on foot.

Except for booing and jeering and a verbal interchange between Lieutenant Bernard J. Conlin and Martin J. Walsh, strike organizer, there was no disorder.

GUARD TO REMAIN

Police Chief Thomas J. Foley, however, declared that the heavy guard would remain about the plant until there was a definite guaranty peace would be kept.

Walsh, representing the Committee for Industrial Organization, complained to Lieutenant Conlin that company foremen were canvassing the pickets and attempting to induce them to come to work.

Conlin paid little attention to the complaint and ordered Walsh to keep moving, as the organizer himself was picketing in disobedience of the court order issued by Judge William A. Burns on Monday. Walsh objected to being "hustled," but he moved.

What action will be taken as the result of the CIO group defying the injunction authorities were not ready to say.

Company officials declared that had it not been for the pickets many more workers would have reported for work.

First open split with CIO leaders had come yesterday with 411 strikers signing a petition calling upon the organizing committee to authorize the return to work. The petitioners claimed to represent a majority of the 800 strikers.

REJECTED BY LEADER

Walsh declined to sign the agreement and notified the company the petition had no legal standing because a temporary contract signed March 9, which recognizes the SWOC as bargaining agency, was still in force. Walsh further declared the striking minority would stay out and picket.

Samuel E. Angoff of Boston, counsel for the SWOC, deplored Walsh's attitude and announced he would advise him and all other union leaders to avoid activities which might lead to contempt proceedings.

A. F. of L. Launches Own Steel Union

Chicago, July 14 (US)—The American Federation of Steel Workers, newest organization to be sponsored by the A. F. of L., is active here today in an effort to take from the CIO some of its prestige—and members.

Opening guns of the new group were fired in the Calumet steel area today less than 12 hours after the strike-bound plant was reopened. This is the first drive of the A. F. of L. in the mass production field.

William Schoenberg, personal representative of President William Green, said a score of independent unions of steel workers opposed to the Committee for Industrial Organization, which have applied for A. F. of L. affiliation will form the nucleus of the new organization.

Among these is the association of steel employes, which led the "back to work" movement at the Indiana Harbor mills of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, Schoenberg said.

The firm's employes started back to work after a 47-day strike which cost them more than $2,000,000 in wages. The strike was called by the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, affiliated with the CIO.

GUILD WALKOUT IN DEADLOCK

Decatur, Ill., July 14 (AP)—Edward Lindsay, editor of the Decatur Herald-Review, said today there was little prospect of an early settlement of the strike which has caused suspension of both morning and evening editions of the newspaper since Sunday.

Lindsay stated the American Newspaper Guild, which called the strike, had made no attempt to open negotiations, but Charles Swart, president of the Decatur Guild unit, said "the paper broke off negotiations, so it's up to the management to renew them."

Yesterday 100 pickets turned back union typographical employes of the paper when they attempted to return to their jobs. The typographical employes met and voted, on the advice of international officers, to return to work in order to protect their contract.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Fliers Rush Supplies to Islands

Hurley Orders Aid for Nantucket, Vineyard

Governor Hurley mobilized the entire flying force of the 26th Division of the Massachusetts National Guard today to aid beleaguered Marthas Vineyard and Nantucket Islands.

His order followed receipt of a telegram from selectmen of the town of Oak Bluffs, Nantucket, telling him that the situation there was "desperate" because of lack of food.

NO RELIEF SEEN

The islands, off the southeast coast of the state, have been without transportation from the mainland for three days now. They have neither food nor milk and there is little prospect of relief.

A strike of seamen on the ships that regularly ply between the islands and New Bedford is responsible.

Oak Bluffs' selectmen told the Governor that the heavy influx of summer visitors had added to their woes and that small craft that had been trying to bridge the gap in the emergency were inadequate.

As a result of the wire, Governor Hurley ordered Colonel Paul G. Kirk, public safety commissioner, and Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole to make an immediate survey.

KIRK ON JOB

General Cole was unable to take off, but Colonel Kirk did, and early this afternoon reported to the executive offices that he had landed and was already at work.

At the same time General Cole notified the governor that he had transmitted orders foor all planes of the 26th Division to be in readiness to transfer their base from Boston Airport to Hyannis on Cape Cod, to fly supplies.

The governor himself sent orders to Fort Williams, Me., for two Massachusetts ships attached to the 240th Maine coast artillery to fly to Nantucket.

At the same time residents of Nantucket announced they had notified President Roosevelt that unless he intervenes they will secede from the United States and set up a separate government. Similar threats have been frequently made.

Meantime State Commissioner of Labor and Industries James T. Moriarty is doing his utmost to settle the strike so that large quantities of perishable merchandise on the docks at New Bedford may be shipped to the islands.

A coast guard cutter was pressed into service to carry parcel post to the 15,000 summer visitors of the islands.

COUNCIL AGAIN FAILS TO O. K. KERRIGAN

For the fifth consecutive week the executive council today failed to take favorable action on Governor Hurley's nominations of Mayor Lawrence E. Crowley of Brockton as a probate judge of Plymouth County, and of Dr. John J. Kerrigan, of Fall River, as chairman of the Fall River police board.

By a vote of 6 to 3, the council [illegible] of Dr. Kerrigan, and by a vote of 6 to 2, with Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly not balloting, the council postponed action on Mayor Crowley's nomination until next week.

Following the council meeting, the Governor told reporters he would submit Dr. Kerrigan's name again next week.

NEW BOARD NAMED

The name of former Police Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney was submitted by Governor Hurley today as a member, to serve one year, on the newly created Massachusetts Development and Industrial Commission. It is an unpaid commission.

This commission was created by the 1937 Legislature and given a $50,000 appropriation to be used to advertise the advantages of Massachusetts as an industrial, recreational and agricultural state.

Other names and the respective terms, submitted by the governor, as members of the board were Arthur L. Race, managing director of the Copley-Plaza Hotel, two-year term; John J. Kearney, three years; Joseph H. Burke, four years, and Edgar J. Arcand, member of the governor's military staff, five years.

NANTUCKET SHERIFF

The council confirmed the appointment of Joseph Larkin, of Nantucket, as sheriff of Nantucket County, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Joseph A. Johnson, Jr.

Edward Morley, of Manchester, was confirmed as justice of the district court of Eastern Essex.

The reappointment of James Farrell, of Boston, to the department of industrial accident board was also confirmed.

Victim Dragged From Cafe, Beaten

Beaten by two men who dragged him out of a Scollay square restaurant, Robert Cohen, 20, Holborn street, Roxbury, was treated at Haymarket Relief Hospital today for contusions and abrasions of face and body and lacerations of both knees.

Quincy Woman Hit By Student Driver

Serious injuries were suffered today by Mrs. Vera Prette, 51, of 90 Bryant avenue, Quincy, a pedestrian, when she was struck near her home by an automobile operated by a student driver.

At City Hospital, where her name was placed on the danger list, she was found to have concussions of the head and arms, a bad head laceration and a possible fracture of the skull.

Police said the car was run by Miss Annie J. Clements, 30, of Spruce street, Milton, who was being given driving instructions.

Summer Sun May Lead to Baldness

Call for Free "Exposure Test"

● Before you go on your vacation, play golf without a hat, or go to the beach—you should learn how to expose your scalp to the sun so benefit, not damage, will result. Over-exposure to the hot summer sun increases hair-loss, aggravates dandruff, and starts your scalp on the road to baldness. Call today at a Thomas office for a free "exposure test" and learn the proper way to give your scalp a beneficial "sun bath."

The Thomas' will gladly advise you — without charge — on all matters of hair health. Call for a complete scalp examination and learn for yourself how Thomas treatment ends dandruff, stops abnormal hair-loss and actually re-grows hair on thin and bald spots. "Of Thee I Sing" Nearest To Gilbert, Sullivan Work

The Pulitzer Prize comic opera, "Of Thee I Sing," in which Kaufmann and Ryskind collaborated in text and the two Gershwins in lyrics and music was deservedly successful, perhaps the nearest to Gilbert and Sullivan this country has ever seen.

"Let Them Eat Cake," the sequel, while equally brilliant in text, failed of an equal success probably because of Gershwin's own music, which was not quite up to the mark.

A great many readers of this column can speak more authoritatively than I about the dozens of songs for musical comedies which George Gershwin had been turning out ever since he was 15 or 16 years old, some of which he was at work on when he died.

Musicals like "Strike Up the Band," "Girl Crazy," "Oh, Kay," "Lady, Be Good," all the way back to his earliest "La, La, Lucille" could be counted on for striking and unusual tunes, far removed from the conventional fashion of an earlier generation.

He was a master of pleasant and interesting dissonances and of melodies with interesting undertones of the semi-serious and even the bizarre. Some day, I hope, there will be what old-time musicians used to call a "pot-pourri" of all George Gershwin's most interesting and effective inventions by which he may be remembered.

Country Can Ill Afford To Lose Such a Genius

America could ill afford to lose him. We have few enough important composers, whether of the old school or the new, that we can easily afford to spare a young musician of his genius.

True we have still Jerome Kern and Cole Porter and others of equal charm, but there was something in George Gershwin's music which was utterly his own and individual. "Rhapsody in Blue" will undoubtedly remain one of the few really great compositions of our generation.

Youthful Stylists Show Surprising Art Knowledge

Schiaparelli has captured the imagination of this country as has no other great foreign dressmaker, judging by the cross-section of youthful opinion as put forth in the votes of girls who have entered the fashion career contest sponsored by Jordan Marsh Company.

Miss Edna Somers, who directs the Fashion Center and is keeping close watch on the reactions of contestants, notes an unusually keen feeling for technical criticism of window displays, and a surprisingly deep recognition of current trends in art. Particularly in the application of those trends to fashions in clothes and interior decorating.

There's also a tendency to get very personal and feminine (some might almost call it feline) when criticising shop departments . . . apparently it's hard to forget the time one had to stand around and tap a toe for several minutes until a saleswoman appeared. Now, girls!

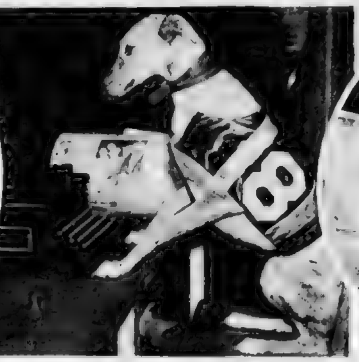
All Up for Pink Final Derby!

Eight Distance Champions to Compete in Friday's Classic at Wonderland Park

Gay Matron Realizes Class Of Field

"Here's luck," chirps Russ

"You'll need it," says Tom



"Looks tough," scouts Gay Matron

American Photo

Casey Lighter, Faster Than Ever | Louis Would Be Easy for Him

By JACK CONWAY

IT IS SELDOM that a wrestler in training has drawn such favorable comment from those who have seen him in action as is true in the case of Steve Casey, who is getting ready for his finish bout with Dan O'Mahony at Fenway Park on next Tuesday night.

Mr. Boston

Casey is training at the Muni[illegible] Field in Cambridge opposite the Gateway Restaurant. He has been working out each afternoon at two o'clock with an array of sparring partners.

I do not envy the tasks of the young men who train with Casey. The big Irishman works as hard in training as he does when in action on the mat. He is a serious, determined type of athlete, and is stronger than any man in the world with the possible exception of O'Mahony.

Casey [illegible]

NOT HATRED FOR O'MAHONY

WHEN I TALKED w[illegible] clear he bears [illegible] toward O'Mahony.

"I have read stories," said Casey, "which would give the public the impression that I hate Dan O'Mahony. Why should I hate Danno? Like myself, he is an Irishman and an athlete. I have always felt that one loses much valuable time and energy hating people.

"Of course there is intense athletic rivalry between O'Mahony and myself. Each of us is trying to win the world heavyweight mat championship, and neither will give the other any possible edges.

"I was a bit amused when O'Mahony rushed from Toronto to his training camp in Westboro so that he could start work last Saturday like I did. He didn't want me to get any possible advantage.

"O'Mahony is better known than I am in view of the fact he came to the United States sooner, and also because he was fortunate in winning the world heavyweight championship.

"I am three years older than Danno. I am 26 while he is 23. I have had more mat experience in Ireland and England than he, and I believe I shall prove his master in our bout next Tuesday."

Casey was pleased when I told him he looked impressive in his w[illegible] bout with Ed Don George.

"George also wrestled well," said Casey, modestly. "Ed is a fine wrestler, and a good type for sport.

"George and myself didn't break any of the rules of wrestling. There was no kicking, punching nor clowning in the match. I think the American public has tired of such tactics.

"I believe wrestling promoters will find their shows drawing larger crowds if they insist that the wrestlers live up to the rules.

"During the depression, the public craved wild excitement and novelties, and I think this condition was responsible for some of the things the promoters did.

"I never believed in other than legitimate wrestling styles, and I think this is why I have won more than 300 matches without ever having been pinned."

GETS ON EDGE LIKE BOXER

JACK ALBRIGHT, Casey's manager, told me the Irishman gets on edge before a bout like a boxer.

"When Steve has a big match on, he plans his training so that he will reach his physical peak on the night of the contest," said Albright.

"Steve is as grouchy as a bear for three or four days before a tussle. This indicates he is in perfect condition."

I asked Albright, a veteran wrestler, what he thought would happen in a mixed bout between Casey and Joe Louis.

"It would all be over as soon as Casey got his big dukes on Louis," said Albright. "Steve would break Louis in two."

I agree with Albright on the matter of Louis. A first class wrestler has always been able to beat a first class boxer. Once a boxer is knocked off his feet, he is helpless. His punch then is of no value to him.

I can visualize Casey getting his tremendous hands on Louis and then thinking of how the "Brown Bomber" knocked out Jimmy Braddock, Irish American boxer.

Steve would pin Louis' arms, then pick the boxing champion up as if he were a child and crash him to the canvas with a mighty thud. These Caseys of Kerry are a powerful lot when they decide to crush the opposition.

End of Golf Myth: John Montague Ends Mystery Tale

SOMETHING HAS HAPPENED IN HOLLYWOOD which might have been dreamed by the celluloid city's best scenarist—a weird, stranger-than-fiction tale with a morbid twist about a golfer named John Montague, whose prodigious sport talents were equalled only by his mania for modesty.

Austen Lake

It is two years since stories began drifting East about this legendary, Paul Bunyanesque figure of the links who was beating the leading Pacific slope pros with a garden-rake driver and a tack-hammer putter. He appeared to be a Hercules of a man who had once imprisoned Victor McLaglen, the ex-prizefighter and portrayer of he-man movie parts, in a clubhouse locker, standing him on his head and leaving him locked in.

[illegible]

The world was accustomed to Hollywood's blurbs. Yet, occasionally, reputable golfers like Horton Smith, Jimmy Thomson and Gene Sarazen would add some first hand testimony and say that Montague was a genuinely great golfer—not of the incomparable, Houdini sort, but still in the top-flight class.

His great handicap, they said, was that he lacked nervous balance in tournament play and appeared twittery when performing before a gallery.

He Was Camera-Shy

MONTAGUE HAD A STANGE ANTIPATHY for crowds, usually skulking around the course in the morning hours and confining himself to rounds with a few movie intimates, like Bing Crosby, Richard Dix and the fat-man comic, Hardy. He said golf was only an amusement, he enjoyed it as a diversion, and he detested high pressure competition.

And especially he hated camera men who attempted to snap his portrait, snatching their black boxes and exposing their plates or catching them swiftly from behind to smash their gear. But he always bought them new equipment to replace the ruined old, until the picture men let him alone as a jovial lunatic with a phobia against photographers.

After all, many celebrities hated having their pictures taken—J. P. Morgan, Col. Charles Lindbergh, the younger Roosevelts. So why not John Montague?

He Shunned What Others Sought

HERE IS AN ODD THING. [illegible] promoters [illegible] sport editors for a paragraph. Professional publicists [illegible] with food, free junkets and bottle goods. Race track, baseball and wrestling magnates dispatch Christmas gifts of [illegible] shakers, hampers of whiskey, and haberdashery due [illegible]. And none for their outlay and pains have received the volume of notoriety that John Montague got by trying to avoid it.

[illegible]

[illegible]

LaVerne Moore, as Inspector John Cosartz of the Oneida police knew, had been a better than average golfer and a powerful ex-athlete who had played baseball with Syracuse and once, reputedly, had a Southern tryout with the Boston Braves. He was a youth of winning manners, fastidious of dress and with all the niceties of grammatical speech. Maybe . . . maybe.

* * *

Farewell to Green Pastures

[illegible]

LaVerne Moore [illegible]

[illegible] LaVerne Moore [illegible]

He admitted his identity and, instead of enjoying the blandishments of a morning on green golfing acres, went to live in a Hollywood cell.

Ten to twenty years stretched ahead in cramped quarters where the only greens are the potted plants in the prison conservatory, the only "birdies" are sparrows which hop on the wall, and the long brisk walks down the fairways after a sweet tee shot will become mechanical shuffles in prison lockstep formations.

No wonder, as Horton Smith had said, John Montague appeared twittery when performing before golf galleries.

BROWN Wins Over SHUCCO

TONY NEAR K. O. IN SECOND

By JACK CONWAY

[illegible]

BROWN SNEAKS PUNCHES

DENNER DEFEATED

It was one of the best heavyweight bouts witnessed in Boston since the [illegible] Shucco bout last December. Shucco proved he has what it takes when he came up off the floor to make his stout-hearted bid for victory.

[illegible]

McCoy, McCarthy Meet July 26

Al McCoy has signed to defend his New England heavyweight title against Jack McCarthy at a [illegible] show at Fenway Park on July 26. McCarthy recently returned East after helping get Jimmy Braddock into condition for his bout with Joe Louis.

In other ten-round bouts on the McCoy - McCarthy card, Ernie Schultze, German heavyweight, recently brought to this country by Johnny Buckley, will meet Terry Warrington, while Ralph Zannelli will clash with Bobby Allen.

Boxing Results

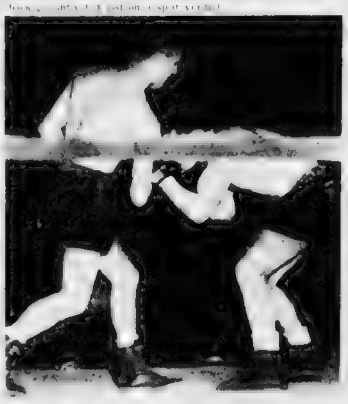
Tony Fails to Go Over Top

[illegible] over the top with a zest in the war [illegible] his countryman in his fight against Natie Brown at Fenway. The famed Shucco jab does little damage here as Brown [illegible] away. Tony, who has beaten [illegible] champions, was [illegible] by the veteran Washingtonian.

[illegible]



In close quarters, Shucco tries an uppercut but Brown resorts to a crouch and easily wards off the intended haymaker. The crowd was small but the fight was well worth watching.

Champions Enter Hearst Regatta

From north, south, east and west came the [illegible] outboat racers the nation boasts. All converging on Boston in lieu of the annual William Randolph Hearst regatta, highlight of the [illegible] summer sports season.

Entries from [illegible], Florida, California and most of the [illegible] points in between have already been received for the water treat which is scheduled for the Charles River Basin on Saturday, August 7 and Sunday, August 8.

A year back a total of 277 entries made new motorboat history, racing to an epic success which was the talk of outboard centers from coast to coast.

Not satisfied to rest on past laurels, Commodore Emeritus Stanley W. Ferguson, one of the central figures behind the Boston venture, has already gone on record to the extent of wagering one of the town's finest dinners that this 1937 regatta will lure more than 350 entries, a figure believed well nigh unattainable in bygone years.

All the old faces and many new ones plan on making Boston the scene of their racing this year, so that when the fields line up for the starting gun, every outstanding pilot will be ready to launch a challenge for supremacy.

The event promises to be a real treat not only to the racers but to the general public, invited guests, close to 100,000 of whom witnessed the 1936 classic.

Pastor would like to fight Joe Louis for the heavyweight title, but he isn't in very good standing with the Louis clan. And anyway, Louis or Lewis, they both sound alike.

High Fleet Regaining Old Speed

By the Associated Press

George D. Widener's High Fleet is not as consistent as last year when she finished either first or second in 13 races but she is still a mighty fast horse. She chalked up her second triumph in four starts [illegible] in beating the [illegible] Rebellion and the fast closing [illegible] Byrne in a three-horse race at Empire City. Held at 6 to 5, the four-year-old daughter of Jack High caught Rebellion in the [illegible] went on to win by a length and a half. Her time for the short six furlongs was 1:09.

Manush's Playing Needles Dodgers

Associated Press Sports Writer

Brooklyn fans thought Henry Emmett Heinie [illegible] National League rookie after 11 seasons in the junior circuit, richly deserved a place on the [illegible]

[illegible] as in 1926 when he won the American League batting championship, but at least he was powdering the [illegible] and that's all the Brooklyn fan will ask of an outfielder.

But Heinie just went on about his business, business such as the [illegible] ing loser.

It gave the Dodgers a 2-1 decision over the Bees and, at the same time, pulled them to within a half game of the [illegible]

Yesterday was [illegible] in the batting averages with Joe Moore, the Giants' thin man who after his five for six yesterday against the [illegible] Terry [illegible]

Moore [illegible] Jo-Jo's five singles drove home the winning run and sent the Giants back to a long home stand only a half game behind the Cubs.

TERRY SMILES

His team [illegible] the ninth when seven safeties, six in succession, scored six runs to tie the score, was a pleasing sign to [illegible] successive triumph and [illegible] of the year saved the afternoon from being a total loss from a turfing standpoint.

Terry, obviously in an effort to find a starter able to fill Hal Schumacher's place, started off with Al Smith. Smitty gave up five hits and three runs in two innings. Dick Coffman, who pitched the third and fourth, was nicked for five hits and six runs. Then young Tom Baker scattered five hits and allowed only one run before being lifted for a pinch hitter.

In the only game in the American League, the Indians backed up Dennis Galehouse's seven-hit pitching with some snappy fielding to edge out the White Sox 2 to 1.

The Cards and Pirates, only other National League entries scheduled, were rained out. The Cards come East today minus one member of their under-manned pitching staff, Jim Winford, who was left in a Pittsburgh hospital after an emergency appendectomy.

JEAN Scores Easy VICTORY

Eastern Point, Conn., July 14 (AP)—Waging an uphill fight, Miss Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia, today defeated Mrs. Mary Louise Hitt of New London, to advance to the semifinals of Shennecossett's 19th Griswold cup golf tournament.

Two down at the end of the first eight holes, the six-time national champion and seven-time Griswold cup winner went all even at the 12th and then closed with a rush to win the next three holes in a row and have the 16th to end the match.

Jean Bauer of Providence, defending the Griswold Trophy, won as she pleased from Mary Fine of Scranton, Pa., 7 and 5.

Shooting the out nine in 37, one over men's par, Miss Bauer made the turn three up, losing only the [illegible] Jean then won the next four holes in a row, using only two strokes [illegible] men's par.

UPHILL BATTLE

It was an uphill battle for the Rhode Island titleholder, who led at only two points during the match, the first and last holes. [illegible] Miss Guilfoil drew up level by [illegible] the fifth and then [illegible]

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

Wing Commander's Note: This is the seventeenth in a series of articles written especially for the Junior Birdmen of America by the headquarters staff of the United States Army Air Corps. The series deals with the day-by-day progress of a cadet and relates, in detail, his training at the Randolph Field Training Center in San Antonio, Texas.

ARTICLE 17

"Aviation Training at the Air Corps Primary Flying School"

The first flight is usually a triangular one from the field to a point some 50 miles away, thence to another point on the equilateral triangle about 50 miles from the first point and 50 miles from the home station and thence to the field.

This cross-country trip is made without landing. Instructors are placed at each of the two outlying fields to check the planes and students as they pass.

Weisberg's finish was one of the most sensational in the annals of state caddy championships. Any 17-year-old boy who finishes 2-4-3 to tie for the low score of a caddy championship is a great competitor.

Moreover, I'm positive that Weisberg has the ability to shoot Commonwealth in the low 70s, even as low as 71.

Cup Return Delayed

Budge Does Well, Allison Flops in 1936 Play

This is the second story in the series about Donald Budge, [illegible] old tennis star, who recently won the world amateur singles title at Wimbledon.

By HARRY BORBA

San Francisco, July 14 (INS) [illegible] Rated [illegible] sixth behind Fred Perry, Jack Crawford, Baron von Cramm, Wilmer Allison and Bunny Austin when the [illegible] Don Budge was [illegible] America's hope for the return of the Davis Cup [illegible] of the ocean.

Budge started [illegible] by taking the northern California indoor [illegible] here and the Palm Springs invitational. These were minor matches but he won them handily.

The Mexicans were no match for the Americans and the troupe moved on to Atlanta where Don had his first trouble. It was little Bitsy Grant again.

Sliding and slithering around on the hard courts of the South, the Atlanta mite whipped Don in straight sets at Atlanta and again in the Mason Dixie tourney where they went five sets.

Meanwhile the doubles team of Budge and Gene Mako was cutting a tremendous figure. Its victims were the national champions, Allison and Van Ryn. Before they reached Philadelphia where the Aussies were to be played, the [illegible] kids had whipped Allison and Van Ryn four separate times.

Arrived at Philadelphia the Davis Cup committee named Allison, Grant, Budge and Mako as the Davis Cup team, and Budge immediately beat Little Bitsy on grass.

PERRY NEMESIS

[illegible] opened today when Allison was named No. 2 singles player and little Bitsy Grant was shunted to the reserve [illegible]

Their views proved well founded when Allison lost to Adrian Quist, second Australian singles player, in four sets after Budge had whipped the Aussie champion, Crawford, in a brilliant five-set contest.

Meanwhile Crawford and Quist had taken the doubles when Mako's weak service and wildness betrayed the American combination. Budge wound up by taking a straight set victory over Quist.

He won the only two matches that the United States took as it bowed out of the Davis Cup without ever leaving home soil.

It was a sorry American team that departed for the all-England championships at Wimbledon. Only the ebullient Budge seemed unaffected by the failure against Australia.

Warming up in the Queens Club tourney Don grabbed off the singles, doubles and mixed doubles as a warning to the British [illegible] Perry.

Meeting in the semifinal round the Briton dropped only the first set to young Don and then took three in a row to drive him out of the tournament. And it was Perry and Dorothy Round who beat Budge and Sarah Palfrey Fabyan for the mixed doubles title.

Shaking off that defeat Budge and Bitsy Grant went over to Paris and whacked the French team 8 to 3, and then returned to England.

Helping the British tune up for the cup finals Budge handed Fred Perry a lacing in four sets by scores of 9—7, 7—5, 8—10, 6—3.

Empty handed the Americans returned to their own courts for the national doubles and singles. Budge won the Rye singles and doubles with Mako. At Newport the pair took the doubles.

Moving on to the nationals at Brookline, the kids again trounced Allison and Van Ryn, the defending champions, to win the title in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

But Forest Hills was something else. The jinx bobbed up again to beat Budge. So did Fred Perry. Budge grittily drove the great Perry to five sets, but pictures revealed later that he weakened in the last one, which ended at 10 to 8. And Budge's greatest normal asset is his tirelessness.

Nickel Day Draws Crowd to Park

It was Nickel Day at Norumbega Park today, from ten o'clock in the morning until eight o'clock in the evening, but only Boston Evening American readers were getting full advantage of the occasion.

With the seventeen coupons they clipped from yesterday's editions of this newspaper they were able to ride the merry-go-round, play skee-ball, go sea-planing, Lindy looping or any of a dozen other things their hearts desired, all at a discount.

Ice cream sandwiches, cool drinks ordinarily selling for a dime—cost coupon holders only a nickel each. Furthermore adults could get into the park for a nickel and children could get in free—but only for this Nickel Day.

Braddock Greater Figure in Defeat Than as Champ

By BOB CONSIDINE

New York, July 14 (US)—A greater figure in defeat than ever he was during his two-year reign as heavyweight champion, Jim Braddock is quietly going about the business of mending the broken thread of his ring career.

Out of the Louis ordeal he brought three things: an awesome respect for the merit of the man who beat him, a firm belief that with a tough fight under his belt he is now in better fighting shape than he was a month ago, and thousands of new friends.

[illegible]

"I never saw that knockout punch. Never even felt it. All I knew was . . . well . . . I was swinging my arms, and then a kinda darkness. The last thing I remember was when I swung a left hook at Joe's face. It missed, like a lot of others I threw at him. Y'see, I was still figuring, in the eighth, that if I could straighten up his head with a left hook I could cross over with my right and nail him.

MISSED WITH LEFT

"Well, I missed with that left, and it must have thrown me off balance because I was half leaning toward him when he nailed me."

[illegible]

"Didn't hit me on the chin. Hit me kinda up in here," and he pointed to a spot just under his left ear. "The fellow can punch."

[illegible]

"Yeah. Plenty. I didn't think he could get away from me like that. He had looked like a bum when he tried to get away from some of those guys he had in his camp. But that night he was fast, and smarter than I thought he was. The fella's learned a lot."

[illegible]

"I didn't hit him very hard. I couldn't, Y'see," and Jim dropped his fork and squared off against us, sitting down, "he come at him pretty hard and got me back against the ropes. We banged away there for a while, then I saw that his hands were straight out, and his head was down, like a man doing a dead man's float. I couldn't draw my right back far, on account of the ropes, so I hit him with a short right hook. That's all."

[illegible]

MISS COST FIGHT

"He got up so quick I guess I was surprised, for he was over in the corner by the time I took after him. And that's where I lost the fight, I guess. I swung as hard as I could for his chin, but the punch went by his head. Geest, I missed a lot. I stepped back and tried it again, but I hit him on the chest or something.

"The hardest punch I got in was in the fourth but it landed on his shoulder. He was cute, that Louis was. He was hard to hit when I thought he'd be easy, and I was missing.

"He'll moider Schmeling, if they meet. I'd like to see them fight. It would gimme a chance to fight Farr. Now there's a guy I'd like to get a poke at. I'd even like to meet Louis again. I'd fight him a little different this time. Maybe lead a little more."

[illegible]

PLENTY COURAGE

Out of the [illegible] has come a new respect for the battler's tremendous courage. He got thousands of messages after the fight, ranging from one from a baroness to Poolroom Eddie.

"Your courage was incomparable. We were in your corner and will stay there forever," Lou and Eleanor Gehrig wired.

"You're still New Jersey's world champion," Governor Hoffman telegraphed.

"You gave us a run for our money, pal," wired Jimmy Cagney, Pat O'Brien and Frank McHugh, and old Lionel Barrymore wired, "You have the heart of a lion, Jim, and there won't be a man in the world who won't be proud to shake your hand."

Many of his new found admirers wired that their admiration was steadfast even though they lost money on Jim. At least a hundred of the telegrams said, "You're still champ to me." Mrs. James J. Corbett's was characteristically kind and thoughtful. J. Edgar Hoover in a beautiful letter, wrote, "I just wanted to tell you how proud I am to be called your friend."

Ten pounds heavier, a new scar on his war-scarred and friendly pan, the veteran warrior has come out of his cave. He has licked his wounds, and they are healed. And in his knuckles, kindly during the man's armistices, there is once again an itch for action.

Kaplan Fined For Kicking

Enfield, Ct., July 14 (INS)—From today on, the word "ten" is going to have more than its boxing ring significance to Louis ("Kid") Kaplan of Hartford, former world featherweight fistic champion and now a boxing referee.

Pleading nolo, Kaplan was fined $10 in town court by Judge Leo Down on a charge that he kicked John Fleming, Jr., 15, of Springfield, Mass., during an amateur boxing program at which Fleming allegedly expressed displeasure at some of Kaplan's decisions as referee.

Wage Raises Fall Mainly on Rest of Us

Upward Trend of Living Costs Seen to Continue At Quicker Pace

By B. C. FORBES

When wages are forced up, you and I foot the bill.

We are already paying in not a few directions—and will have to pay in still more.

B. C. Forbes

The cost of living is reckoned as having risen almost 5 per cent in the last 12 months.

The prospect is that this upward trend will continue, probably at a quickened pace, for some time.

For example, wages of automotive workers have been substantially increased. When visiting Detroit recently, manufacturer after manufacturer told me that prices of 1938 models would have to be marked up.

Steel workers are receiving the best wages ever paid by the industry. As a consequence, prices were boosted not long ago. This means greater expense for building homes, for building offices, for building factories, for building bridges, for building railway equipment and laying new rails.

Metropolitan newspapers have been full of reports of higher prices for fall supplies of different kinds of wearing apparel, furniture, rugs and carpets, etc. The Fairchild detail price index, regarded as a trustworthy authority, records that every major classification of dry goods was marked up last month, that women's wear and home furnishings registered the greatest gains, while as compared with January levels, the sharpest advances have been scored by furs, blankets, floor coverings, men's clothing, china and glassware and luggage. It presents this table:

	July 1, 1937	July 1, 1936
Composite index	96.0	87.9
Piece goods	89.2	84.9
Men's apparel	90.4	87.4
Women's apparel	94.1	90.2
Infants' wear	96.0	92.6
Home furnishings	96.8	89.2

Then, despite the outlook for bountiful crops, practically all farm commodities are costing consumers distinctly more than a year ago.

Take the two mainstays, beef and pork. Beef is fully 50 per cent more costly than a year ago, while pork is more than 20 per cent dearer.

Wheat is up somewhat, while corn has soared fully 40 per cent. Cotton is an exception, but wool isn't. Hides have jumped more than 60 per cent, presaging stiffer prices for shoes.

Then, such commodities as copper, lead, zinc, tin, rubber, oil, coffee, all have joined the upward procession.

Of course, new inventions, improved machinery and other labor-saving devices, greater efficiency, can and do often offset advances in wages almost partially or wholly in certain industries.

But such economies have been seriously counterbalanced by heavier taxes all along the line, to say nothing of shorter work-weeks and costlier raw materials. Social security levies have also swollen production costs.

The point here sought to be emphasized is that when we read of this, that and the next union demand in higher wages, we should not delude themselves into assuming that only the companies compelled to pay the higher wages will feel the effect.

We should recognize that, finally, the bulk of the burden will fall on the rest of us, in our capacity as consumers.

It is also well to realize that, when the pay in any one industry is jacked up out of line with the pay ruling in other industries, the effect is bad all round. We have an instance of this in the building trades. Hourly and daily wages of building craftsmen—largely because of the irregularity of their employment—have been kept at levels which have retarded building, especially home building.

By digesting these facts, we will be better able to form opinions concerning the reasonableness of wage demands. The fundamental fact to be kept in mind is that you and I are the ones who ultimately foot the bill.

CREDIT To Cotton TEXTILE

BUYING SPURT CONTINUES

New York, July 14 (AP)—In appraising forces which at mid-year are setting up the stoutest resistance to business recession, analysts are awarding a large share of credit to the cotton textile industry.

In Worth street, the cotton goods "capital" today, mill agents and other sellers reported the buying revival which sprung up just before the holiday was still proceeding under fair momentum.

Sales volume, the brokers admitted, was not quite up to the level of last week when contracts exceeded mill output by a wide margin. But demand for print-cloths, broadcloths and other cotton fabrics was, they reported, highly satisfactory when measured against the slow movement for the second quarter of the year.

The more optimistic in the trade think the industry has completed its period of adjustment, following a record business in the first quarter, and now is set for another round of expansion within stable limits.

CONSERVATIVE OPINION

Conservative opinion is that the current buying movement may slacken over the next month, but even if this happens the underlying conditions, according to cotton men, are wholly favorable to large sales of cotton goods in the fall.

The July upturn in demand has been attributed to a number of factors, but one stressed particularly by the trade has been the claim converters and finishers were convinced the recession in cloth prices during the second quarter left them at real "investment" levels. Hence they decided it was a good time to replenish their low stocks. Price recoveries in the course of the movement ran from ⅛ to ½ cents a year in the print cloth division.

Partial clearing of the labor skies, rosy estimates of purchasing power in the Western agricultural regions and downward revision of cotton yields ideas also have helped enliven the market.

Better Sentiment in Hardware Trade

New York City, July 14—Hardware business at the opening of July was quieter, but not sufficiently so to be discouraging. Comparisons with the same period of 1936 remain favorable. There is an appreciable improvement in sentiment as to general business affairs, Hardware Age will say in its market summary tomorrow. Replacement supplies of merchandise are more promptly obtained by retail hardware stores from their wholesalers. Manufacturers are in better shape to keep their jobbers supplied with stocks on short notice. Ordering is therefore conservative and the outlook is for steady but light buying throughout the summer.

There will be but few seasonable items on which there will be any considerable carry-over. Holiday and outing merchandise promise a complete and early sell-out. Retail hardware stores sales are better than their buying indicates. All branches of the trade feel that the present relatively quiet conditions are temporary and that an active fall season is sure to follow.

Country areas still show the best retail activity, although sales in city and industrial sections, which are not sharply affected by strikes, are equaling or bettering last year's figures. In the last week reported, country-wide retail sales averaged 2 to 6 per cent better than the preceding week, and continued to hold some 10 to 20 per cent above last year.

N. E. Apple Crop Largest Since '33

New England this year will have the largest apple crop since 1933, says New England crop reporting service of United States Department of Agriculture, at 9,230,000 bushels, against forecast of 194,000,000 for the country.

The survey also reported a total of 244,500 acres of potatoes had been planted with an estimated harvest forecast at 61,837,000 bushels. This compares with 54,032,000 bushels harvested last year, and 51,586,000 for the five-year average 1928-32.

War Talk Depresses Tokyo Market

Cotton spinning shares dropped 11 yen ($3.15); silks, six yen ($1.72); rayons, five yen ($1.43); munitions, two yen (57c); and other shares from three to 13 yen (86c to $3.73).

Doing Something With Our Own Gold Holdings

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, July 14—The recent purchase of silver by the United States Treasury from China is interesting, to say the least.

Our government is to take a large amount of silver from the Chinese government, giving gold in exchange. Presumably, the exchange will be approximately at the current ratio maintained by our government in its buying of the two metals, which greatly overvalues silver. The gold thus newly acquired by the Chinese will be "ear marked" for their account, and left over here. It will be drawn upon as required to pay for our merchandise or to protect Chinese exchange with other countries.

The great importance of our international relations is strikingly illustrated by this performance. A while back, our politicians were eagerly "doing something" for silver and, incidentally, alleged that they would save the Orient. It proved that they did so much for silver that they nearly did the Chinese. They forced China off the silver standard, and on to a sort of gold exchange standard. Now we are influenced to go further and give China very cheaply a large amount of gold, so as to help her stabilise her currency in terms of gold.

Thus, we are "doing something" for our own gold holdings.

The plain fact is that we have so much gold that we hardly know what to do with it. This gold is no good for eating or wearing. Its chief use is as money. Therefore, unless we make it available for monetary use by other nations, we may some day find that they have discovered a means of getting along without it. Then we would find ourselves holding the bag.

I do not think that this recent exchange of metal can be dismissed as a mere gesture of confidence in Chinese exchange, designed to impress the trade world. Nor do I think that it is designed to warn the Japanese that the resources of the United States will back China, in case of war in the Orient.

Among the real reasons, however, may be the following:

It may serve to stimulate our trade with China, since it not only makes for good will, and facilitates Chinese buying here, but also is probably attended by some mutual trade understandings.

It will help to remedy the wrong the administration did when it wrecked Chinese finance by its original silver-buying policy.

It will put some of our excess gold to work, thus relieving us slightly of our embarrassing surplus.

It will help to maintain our artificial "price" of $35 per ounce of gold. (Incidentally, it is conclusive evidence that no reduction in that price is contemplated.)

This thing has its good side, and its bad side.

1—To the extent that it is the beginning of a move to redistribute our gold hoard, and to put it to use in world trade, it is good.

To be sure, we have been "saps" to trade our imported goods for gold at cut prices, and now turn around and trade our overpriced gold for silver at ridiculously high prices. But almost anything is better than letting our gold and our trade rot together.

2—The bad side lies in the inflation of our currency.

This new move means a considerable increase in the issue of silver certificates. These certificates are backed by silver dollars that are worth only about half their nominal value. We are about to inject more over-valued silver into our "metallic reserve."

This is sheer currency inflation.

It will tend to raise prices in this country, at least up to the point where the dollar ceases to be undervalued in terms of gold.

STEEL Has Favorable OUTLOOK

MAJOR UNITS AGAIN RESUME

New York, July 14 (AP)—"Iron Age" said today the current pace of operations in some lines will likely be sustained through August or longer and cited "generally favorable" fourth-quarter prospects.

"With resumption of work at the Indiana Harbor works of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.," the survey said, "all of the major steel units that were affected by strikes are again operating. The average operating rate for the industry is 83 per cent, and it will be 85 per cent or higher by the end of the week, when Sheet & Tube's Chicago district plant will be turning out steel and some units of the Republic Steel Corp. will be on a better operating basis.

"Indications are that the industry will hold to an average rate of 85 per cent during the remainder of July. Present operations in some products are possible through August and even longer, but the continued decline in new business, unless arrested, may reduce rollings of other products by next month.

"Large backlogs exist in tin plate, sheets and heavy plates, but orders are needed for bars, strip steel, rails and some other items. Sheet backlogs are so extended that some buyers are now making reservations as far ahead as December at whatever price is in effect at shipping time.

ANNOUNCEMENT LIKELY

"In view of this situation there is a possibility that fourth quarter prices may be announced within the next week or two or that consumers may make their plans for the fourth quarter. It is generally believed there will be no price advance except possibly of tin plate and pig iron.

"The only reversal of the downward trend in new buying has come to a moderate extent from the automobile industry. A general buying movement from the automobile industry is expected within the next few weeks for its new models.

"Advances of $1.50 at Philadelphia, $1 at Chicago and 75 cents at Pittsburgh have raised the 'Iron Age' scrap composite price to $18.50, a rise of $1.08, which is more than occurred in any one week of the spring advance.

"Appraisal of fourth quarter prospects for steel is generally favorable."

Some Pessimism Dispelled Through Stocks Recovery

By LESLIE GOULD

International News Service Financial Writer

New York, July 14—On the fall outlook for business there continues considerable uncertainty, although the recovery in the stock market since the first of the month has dispelled some of this pessimism.

Those who take a pessimistic view of the fall are overlooking two important factors:

2—The higher payroll of industry, due to wage increases and greater industrial activity.

The farmer and the industrial worker are the two biggest mass groups with purchasing power in this country. And their purchasing power this year promises to be the highest in many years.

The only threat is to that of the industrial worker in strikes. And the situation has eased there some in the last two weeks. But even trouble there will not change the farmers' picture. He seems to be in this year, thanks to old Mother Nature and not to a benevolent government.

Prices of what both these classes buy are, of course, much higher, but the increases in both their incomes has more than kept pace so far with the rising living costs.

The wheat crop this year is placed at 882 million bushels, an increase of 256 million bushels over last year's 626 million bushel crop. This is the biggest crop since 1931 and one of the largest since the record year of 1915, when 1009 millions bushels were harvested.

July wheat is currently selling about $1.25 a bushel—that means 1058 million dollars. A year ago July wheat only sold as high as $1.10 a bushel, which on a shorter crop meant a gross return to the wheat farmer of around 689 million dollars. Thus there is an indicated gain in purchasing power on that crop alone of 369 million dollars.

The same situation is true in corn, only more so. The corn crop this year is placed at 2572 million bushels, the best yield since 1932, and 1043 million bushels over last year's crop of 1529 million bushels.

The price this year for July corn is about $1.28 a bushel, against the best price reached for that month a year ago of 95¼ cents a bushel on a much shorter crop.

This gives a market value for this year's crop of 3257½ million dollars, against 1456 million dollars for last year's, or an increase of 1801½ million dollars. Thus on these two crops—wheat and corn—there is an increase of 2 billion 170½ million dollars. And that is real earned money—not something taken out of a government left pocket and put into a right-hand pocket.

Then, add to this the money from the third big farm crop—cotton. The price this year is about the same as that prevailing a year ago. Now it is 12.87 cents a pound, or $64.35 a bale. A year ago it was 12.92 cents a pound, or $64.60 a bale.

The crop this year is estimated at 14 million bales, against 12 million actual last year, an increase of 2 million bales. The crop this year is worth 900 million dollars, an increase of 125 million dollars over last year's 775 million dollar valuation.

And this is the way it is going with practically all farm crops, so this writer finds it difficult to be bearish on the fall outlook with that much real money pouring into commerce.

May Bare Secret of Future Money Program

Washington, July 14 (INS)—Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve board, may bare to the House banking committee today the secret of the future monetary program of the administration.

Called to testify on a bill to authorize $3,000,000 to destroy and replace Federal Reserve notes payable in gold, Eccles faced questioning on the entire monetary situation.

Republican committee members, who asserted that passage of the bill would be notice to the world of the United States permanent abandonment of the gold standard, sought an explanation from Eccles.

Members who favor abandonment of the present gold buying program and use of more than $1,000,000,000 of "sterilized" gold as a basis for money, also planned to seek information from Eccles.

New Haven Freight Gain Forecast

New Haven, Conn., July 14 (AP)—The trustees of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad filed a revised budget today in Federal Court fixing the expected freight revenues foro 1937 at $48,000,000, an increase of $1,800,000 over the original estimate submitted in January.

The new figure is 8.7 per cent higher than freight revenues for 1936.

The revised budget also showed an increase of $2,950,000 in the estimated operating expenses for the year.

In their report to the court, the trustees said the budget revision was necessitated by increases in traffic volume, maintenance program, wage rates of certain mechanical employes and in costs of material as well as changes in the Railroad Retirement Act.

Webster and Atlas To Pay Regular

Directors of the Webster and Atlas National Bank declared a regular semi-annual dividend of $1.00 a share, or at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, on its capital stock, payable July 31 to stock of record July 24th.

The net current operating earnings for the first six months of 1937, as reported to the board by the president, exceeded twice the amount of the dividend requirement.

Heavy Melting Steel Scrap Up

New York, July 14 (AP)—Dow Jones & Co., in a Pittsburgh dispatch, said today the quotations on No. 1 heavy melting steel scrap is $19.25 to $19.75, an advance of 25 cents a ton.

Output Is Behind Demand

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

One of the natural questions which accompanied the recent declines in business and security prices was, "is the United States over-produced?" The answer was very thoroughly supplied by the recent study of the Brookings Institute of present consumer and producer demand plus accumulated deficiencies.

Actually the study showed that the United States in 1936 was underproduced by some 12,000 million dollars. A staggering deficiency accounted for by actual production of some 21,000 million dollars against minimum requirements gauged at the rate of 23,000 million dollars. While the actual production figure for 1936 is only 4,000 million dollars under the 1925-29 average and on the surface may look impressive, it must not be forgotten that the needs of an expanding population require the upward adjustment of former normals.

The United States in order to meet the needs of a larger population must, in the opinion of economic observers using the Brookings study, produce durable goods in the next five years at the rate 60 per cent above that currently prevailing. And it must exceed the average of the boom period by 33 1-3 per cent. Oddly enough estimates of the number of workers needed to carry out such a program; estimates of present unemployed and estimates of the growth of population during the next 10 years all run between 7 to 9 million. Thus increasing production to the absorption point would apparently take care of the unemployment problem.

All of the above leads to just one unavoidable conclusion: The materials for recovery alone are not only present, but the materials for a sustained period of prosperity as well. Talk of subduing the rise is made to look foolish on the factual record and it will some day be apparent to all that the only barrier in the way of returning prosperity is government hostility towards the capital that must flow to make it possible to produce what the United States needs for use.

* * *

The stock market acts as though it found it hard to decide whether or not to move sidewise or have the anticipated reaction. The chances are that the top flight industrials are still experiencing good demand on small reactions and not only can but will work higher. Rails behave poorly and we would like to see them do something worth while in here. If they do not and the industrials continue to climb it will, in this writer's opinion, be necessary to suspend a buying program temporarily and perhaps turn to the selling side. In the latter event the aim will be to clear out all unsatisfactory situations remaining as well as taking profits on issues that have had better than average recoveries.

Measured by the Dow-Jones industrial average a further recovery to the 182-185 area is entirely possible. In fact, the action of prices early today suggested such a development rather strongly. However, if such is the case a sharper reaction than would otherwise be required seems sure to take place and at the same time a longer period would be needed before the rise is resumed.

Notebook: We understand Interchemical will show about the same earnings in the second as in the first quarter . . . About $1.00 per share . . . Such a showing will be satisfactory since the second period is seasonally the poorest . . . Creole Pete, on the Curb, is in an interesting chart position . . . It finished its reaction early in April and then built up a good base . . . In recent weeks it has broken out on the upside and is now under its bull market peak by a small margin . . . On dips the stock should be picked up for a move to a new top around 48 . . . The sole barrier is around 40 and after this is overcome the higher figure should be the first of a succession of new highs . . . Only "if" is that the industry continue to operate under favorable conditions.

BARUCH On Granary PLAN

UNECONOMIC AREAS

(Editor's note: This is the second of two stories on an interview with Bernard M. Baruch in which the chairman of the War Industries Board in the Wilson administration extended his Union College commencement address on "Uneconomic Areas" and explained the nature of government regulations he believes should be applied during these "peaks and valleys" of our national life.)

By R. H. HIPPELHEUSER

New York, July 14 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch believes in the general principle of the "ever-normal granary," provided its operation does not contravene natural economic laws and does not attempt to hold commodities at fixed price levels.

After explaining the control methods he would have the government apply in an "uneconomic area" at the bottom, when prices are tumbling downward, the one-time speculator, who retired from Wall Street three years ago, was asked:

"Mr. Baruch, aren't your proposals comparable to the ever-normal granary plan now under consideration in Washington?"

"Yes," he replied, "to a very considerable extent, if the ever-normal granary idea would be confined to where the prices would be in consonance with the law of supply and demand, and would not try to hold prices at false heights. If the ever-normal granary plan would result in buying in the market at falling prices, when the price was at or below the cost of production, it would lessen and soften the fall and consumption would move apace. If the price is held at a false height, there would only be one result, disaster to the farmer in the end and loss to the government. We would have an abnormal granary and valorization.

"What am trying to say is this: We must work in co-operation with the natural economic laws and in the consonance with human nature.

"When the prices attain normal balance, the government should sell to prevent too great a rise and be ready if there is another decline. If the rise became too great, we would enter an 'uneconomic area' at the top. The government should level off the peaks as well as shore up the valleys."

"There's an old saying," he remarked, "that when a crop scare makes the front page, that's the end of the move."

"We latterly had an example of a time when both securities and commodities got into high 'uneconomic areas,' caused by the war scare and the tremendous armament programs. Mr. Neville Chamberlain said everything was all right, that prices were not too high. President Roosevelt said prices were too high and that the government didn't propose to spend its money with prices and values so high. Incidentally, and at the same time, there was talk of lowering the gold price and the 'uneconomic area' of inflated boom prices disappeared.

"At the peaks, the government, which is always one of the heaviest consumers, could stop its vast expenditures and announce it would not buy because the price was too high.

"It can use the pressure of the Federal Reserve system—it could use the tariff."

In between these high and low "uneconomic areas," Baruch believes the government "should keep its nose out and its hands off. It's too big a job for government. Personal initiative and personal selectivism can do it much better. It's only in times of mass fear and madness that the government should act."

"Who would determine," Baruch was asked, "when the government agencies should step in?"

"Congress," he replied. "Only Congress should have the power to declare when an emergency existed.

"What we would be doing would be not to interfere with the natural law of supply and demand, but to help the law work better."

"Would you be interfering with this law," Baruch was asked, "in allowing the government to buy or lend to soften the fall?"

"Not at all," he replied, "if you did not try to hold up the price. It would help the law along, because time is always of the essence. Given time, the law would work out, but without time, it works out disastrously."

"Mr. Baruch," the interviewer asked, "what about a time of abnormal expansion, such as the world war overproduction?"

"After such a period of abnormal expansion," he answered, "like the wartime production of wheat or other commodities, we would have harder sledding, but if wisely applied and acting only when the price got at or below the cost of production, I believe the plan would have the desired effect."

STEELS Lead Stocks HIGHER

TRADING QUIETER

New York, July 14—Steels thrust upward in the stock market today, carrying the balance of the list fractions to a point or more higher. Active at the start, the pace slowed near the fourth hour, but the leaders held most of their gains despite light profit realizing.

Grains tilted backward and cotton was a little lower. Bonds were uneven. Oils and utilities were in favor. Motors accomplished little, but selected rails added a bit on light volume. Farm implements staged a mild rally.

U. S. Steel led with a rise of more than 2 points. Others active on the upside most of the day were Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corp., Pure Oil, Socony-Vacuum, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Deere, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power & Light, Anaconda, American Smelting, Westinghouse, Sante Fe, Southern Pacific, Loew's and General Electric.

Unchanged or narrow were General Motors, Chrysler, Studebaker, American Can, Douglas Aircraft, Baltimore & Ohio and Goodyear.

CURRENT ITEMS

A more than seasonal drop in electric power production for the week ended July 10, as reported by the Edison Electric Institute, was ascribed to curtailed operations in the steel industry and some shutdowns in the textile field.

The steel picture, however, was more heartening, with "Iron Age" predicting the current pace of operations would continue through August. Heavy backlogs were reported in tin plate, sheets and heavy plate.

Electric Power Production Off in Week

New York, July 14 (AP)—Production of electricity in the United States for the week ended July 10 was 2,096,266,000 kilowatt hours, a decrease of 6.4 per cent from the previous week but an increase of 7.2 per cent over the same week a year ago, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The more than seasonal drop brought the Associated Press index of power production, with 1929-30 taken as 100, down to 119.5 from 120.1 in the previous week. The index, which is adjusted for seasonal and long-term trend, stood at 113.9 a year ago.

	1937	1936	1935	1934	1933
High	121.5	119.8	105.5	97.4	91.9
Low	116.3	102.0	94.1	91.9	80.2

The institute noted the following per cent increases in major geographic regions: New England 1.5, Middle Atlantic 5.8, Central Industrial 8.3, West Central 0.7, Southern States 10.0, Rocky Mountain 22.2, Pacific Coast 7.8.

Boston Edison Name Change

The change in the name of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston to the Boston Edison Company will be effective as of July 16.

Security Based on Fear

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1937, Universal Service

New York, July 14—When there has been complete psychological recovery from the depression, the American people will doubtless shift their emphasis from "economic security" to venturesomeness. There is still, however, a lingering tendency to overemphasize security.

Though the yearning for security is a profoundly human trait, it is based largely on fear. In periods marked by breadlines and widespread unemployment, men think in terms of security, rather than dream constructively of advancement and progress.

This attitude has driven large numbers of young men into routine civil service jobs. In more normal times, these same fellows would have assumed the risks and opportunities of business.

Labor leaders plead that they are animated by a desire to heighten the "economic security" of their members.

Politicians promise "security" through social insurance.

This is all, of course, the reaction to the ghastly evidence of insecurity which came at the nadir of the depression when the savings of many people were wiped out.

Insecurity was overdone, as a result of the excesses of promoters and speculative financiers, and the ticker-mindedness of business executives.

But the pendulum, it seems to me, has swung too far in the direction of safety first.

Progress depends on risk taking on venturesomeness.

Queen Isabella of Spain was not playing safe when she turned over her jewels to Columbus to finance his exploratory voyages.

In ordinary affairs, the speculator, or risk taker, serves a useful purpose. He loses so often that he is perhaps a martyr to progress.

Since earliest times, America has been peopled by men of daring and imagination.

Europeans, who were dissatisfied with staying in a rut in a highly stratified society, broke loose from their moorings, and in the spirit of high adventure came to a new land.

In science, in aviation, in every field of human knowledge, many are willing to run the risk of failure in order to advance popular techniques.

The missing Amelia Earhart in an epic manner exemplifies the heroic qualities of those who are willing to venture out into the unknown.

Now, as for legitimate and reasonable economic security, this can be attained chiefly through the healthy functioning of a balanced internal economy. Real security is contingent on the underlying soundness of our whole economic society.

It depends on balanced economic relationships among the principal producing groups, so that they can fully employ one another through interchanging among themselves the products of a year's labor. When conditions of parity exist, the public and private credit is strengthened, and an underpinning is placed under all investments.

This writer always advises the small investor to handle his affairs prudently—especially to avoid going into debt to buy securities. But he also recognizes that all securities involve varying degrees of hazards.

In spite of the recent overemphasis on security, America's arteries have not yet hardened.

Devoted men—practitioners of science and invention—are courageously at work in the great industrial laboratories, trying to find new and better ways to make comfort goods for the people.

"Unbossed" Russia

Accordingly, the Soviet press and spokesmen are giving the Russian populace another course of instructions, using the United States as the horrible example of what must be avoided in order to achieve the world's only real Democracy.

Quite in character with the Bolshevist ideas of Democracy, the leading orator appears to be Andrey Vishinsky, the Soviet attorney general, who "prosecutes"—or rather stage-manages—the frequent "trials" in which foredoomed groups of prisoners abjectly condemn themselves as "Trotskyite Traitors" and are then hustled off to firing squads in the night.

As reported to the New York Times, Vishinsky made a speech at Moscow the other day in which he explained the American system of government.

> "In the United States the constitution granted 'equality' to the people," he said. "Each state elects two deputies, but what happens actually? New York with many millions of people elects two deputies, while a state with a few hundred thousand also elects two deputies. Amazing equality!"

By "deputies" the learned lawyer evidently means our United States senators.

IN his speech was no reference to our House of Representatives, which is elected proportionately to the population.

Especially, Vishinsky warned, Soviet Russia must avoid the widespread buying of voters that prevails here, and such abuses as occurred in Chicago when Al Capone elected a whole group of gangsters to the city council by "terror and force."

All this sounds very strange to American ears.

However, there should be no doubt that Vishinsky understands the Soviet system better than he does the American.

There is only one political party in Russia—the Communist Party, to which about one-half of 1 per cent of the population belongs.

Under the new constitution, candidates need not belong to the party and preachers will be allowed to vote.

But nominations will be made by Stalin's agents.

Obviously, Stalin need not care how many "secret ballots" are cast for his approved candidates, nor how many of them are elected.

Drive for Jobs Proposed

THAT the Administration has selected Massachusetts for its initial experiment which aims towards finding employment for 35,000 workers, who will be dropped from Works Progress Administration rolls on July 15, speaks volumes for business in this Commonwealth.

Deal leaders in a drive for jobs have picked James Roosevelt, son of the President, to lead the movement.

As the first step in this campaign young Roosevelt invited 229 publishers of daily and weekly newspapers in Massachusetts, Governor Hurley, as well as other prominent public officials and business leaders, to attend a conference at a Boston hotel on Friday.

At this parley the Administration's plan to stimulate interest of private industry in the unemployed will be revealed for the first time.

From Washington comes the hint that those at the meeting will be asked to determine ways or means of publicizing the plight of former relief workers and of stimulating their absorption by private firms.

Business leaders were quick to express the view that the plan has merit. Many were of the opinion that it would be interesting to see how far industry can go in making 35,000 jobs.

It was pointed out that recently the government has made a secret survey in New England with the idea of stimulating more business in this section. If the results of this investigation are constructive employers will welcome the movement.

More business would tend to produce jobs and Massachusetts business executives would be quick to respond by giving the needy employment.

Should the Administration's experiment in Massachusetts prove successful the plan is to extend the move to other sections of the nation.

Leaders in business, as well as thousands of workers, eagerly await further revelations in the movement to create new jobs.

Newton to Greet Babies

The latest wrinkle comes from the City of Newton. In that locality an official baby greeter is to be created.

From now on when a newborn baby is registered in Newton the certificate will be placed in a special file.

"Happy Birthday to You" will be Newton's greeting by card to the child on its first birthday.

Inside the card will be a plea from health officials to the parents to have their babies immunized against diphtheria. Newton's standing in a recent diphtheria health survey led to this idea.

The plan has merit and should tend to bring the city's health standing to a higher level.

CCC Plans Vocational Schools

MORE than a hundred "vocational shops" at New England Civilian Conservation Corps camps may be built in the near future.

This plan as revealed at Harvard by John A. Lang of the National CCC organization, originated in the War Department and was forwarded in recommendations to Robert Fechner, national director.

Throughout the United States 1600 of these shops are likely to spring up at a cost of approximately $800,000.

The main purpose of the idea is to teach youths of America various vocational trades

Tyranny vs. Democracy

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

The most sickening thing about tyranny is its cowardly hypocrisy. The most gracious side of democracy is its open-eyed sincerity and guilelessness. Democracy may be dumb, but it is almost never a scoundrel.

Edwin C. Hill

These thoughts spring from a perusal of the foreign news—Russia, the land of the wretched and the terror-stricken; Germany, land of the deluded and vengeful; Italy, land of the romantic and vainglorious. Every one of them reeking with propaganda so thin you can see through it after dark; every one of them (Italy perhaps excepted) permitting travelers to see only what the tyrants desire to be seen. Hiding all else. Lying about all else.

Not only are essential facts withheld, but American voyagers, before landing, are thoroughly saturated with the glories of the new model, hob-nailed state and with overt or subtle deprecation of democracy. Propagandists go down to sea now as never before.

We allow our people to travel and inquire as freely as they may, without being tainted by heresy. There isn't much staying power in our democratic ideals if they can't stand that test.

GERMAN DECREE

Passports are cheap and easy to get, and Columbia doesn't mind letting us play with the neighbors' children, even if some of them are inclined to be a bit rough, with queer manners.

Not so in Europe. The interdiction against free intellectual intercourse comes from the other side. They aren't quite so sure as we are that their ideas are immune to heresy germs. Here is a literal translation from a decree of the German Minister of Education, entitled "Foreign Travel by University Teachers and Students," issued a few months ago.

"It has frequently been observed of late that Germans, and especially professors and students, when traveling abroad for cultural or scientific purposes, have failed to establish contact with their local national official representatives.

"Such contact is especially important in countries where Jews exercise a predominent influence in cultural affairs, and where emigrants seek to press into the foreground in questions concerning German cultural life.

ORDERS TO GUESTS

"In these countries, it is particularly necessary that German national guests, local or official, shall be informed of these local relationships by the official national representatives abroad.

"I therefore order that all under control of my ministry, who travel abroad for study, research or lectures, or for congresses or similar purposes, shall on their arrival in a foreign country forthwith get into contact with the competent local representative of Germany, with the foreign organization of the Nazi Party and with the branch office of the German Academic Exchange Service, wherever possible. If this is not done, a short report of the reasons must be furnished to me."

The problem of keeping blinders on travelers probably isn't so important as the minister's stern decree might indicate. People in absolutist states don't travel much, at home or abroad. Building a goose-step millennium overnight takes sacrifice.

CURB ON VISITORS

You wear shoddy and eat black bread and cinch up your belt and walk to work, with time out to parade and sing about the new salvation. But one thing is certain—precious few of you will be either students or tourists in foreign countries.

In a shoe store, you try on a shoe before buying it. An American planning a trip to Europe might just "try on" this idea of having to report to American "cultural" headquarters in Europe, to be shielded from seeing anything somebody at Washington might not want him to see.

We of this generation have come too easily by our democracy; but trade places, in imagination, with any dweller in a totalitarian state, and you will come out of it a happier and more loyal American.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, July 14 — Every morning between 6 and 7 there strolls northward on Madison avenue in the 50's a Tuxedoed gentleman, a bit weary, on his way home. Strangers turn slowly and smile knowingly. To them, of course, he is another stay out on the last lap of a hectic night.

O. O. McIntyre

But to familiars he is Arnold Reuben, the delicatessen man, whose restaurant for more than 20 years in various parts of town has been a fixed haven of the celebrities of the stage, cinema and radio and other callings identified with amusements.

Reuben has stood in the entrance as a greeter from the time his place was a two by twice sandwich shop on upper Broadway until it reached its present opulence. He knows the inside lives of his customers more than most anyone of his day and there are few he has not befriended.

The Reuben crowd does not really begin to collect until around 3 a. m. It is composed largely of those in white ties who have been doing the town, from Greenwich Village to Harlem, and do not consider a night out complete without having stopped off at Reuben's.

No newspaperman has been so successful in complete cessation of activities after a busy life as Karl Bickel, who decided to retire as the head of a press association a few years ago. Bickel had worked furiously and at top speed for more than 25 years and there were those who said he could never be happy away from the grind. But he burned all his bridges behind him, built a home at Sarasota, Fla., and, as he says, "just loafs." Sometimes with the local banker, other times with the shoe cobbler or watches horseshoe pitchers. So pre-occupied is he doing nothing he only looks at his mail once a week.

In the mail comes a letter asking for money and on either side of the letter, the left and right margin, is a list of patrons and patronesses. So long a list that if each lady and each gentleman would give $5 to the charity it would be a considerable sum.

The precociousness of the modern youth continued to bewilder oldsters. Fannie Hurst has a friend who was doing a difficult cross word puzzle and was stuck for a word meaning long and pointless talk. He asked his married daughter, who did not know, but his nine year grandson, who was not asked, said. "Try filibuster." Later he came on "flying buttress," which also stumped the householder, but the grandson gave the definition at once. Not only that, he knew when it was first used and why and gave a short description of this particular architecture.

Sentiment: In Woodlawn Cemetery, not far from the White Plains road, is a marble monument of a small boy on a bench. A hand of the boy holds a flower. Each day, wind, snow or rain, a fresh flower is placed in the hand by a florist who has a shop near by.

A spy tells of a neat trick in selling Florida real estate that rarely fails to zing the bell. When the realtor has prospective customers he expands on the glories of real estate and the natural advantages of Florida and the proper moment in his peroration suggests a little native snort. He then puts up a ladder on one of the cocoanut trees of his place, cuts down a likely looking specimen, and, slicing off the top, pours the milk into glasses filled with ice. The result is startling. The milk turns out to be a heavenly ambrosia with an oopsie daisy. As a rule, the host soon has the visitors signing on the dotted line. He does not, of course, explain he has taken precaution the day before to bore a hole in the cocoanut, add a goodly portion of gin to the milk. He then replaces the cocoanut and in 24 hours the gin and milk have fermented a lulu.

The perennially youthful Fanny Ward the first time in her indeterminable years faces obesity. All her life she has been able to eat and drink what she pleased without a pound of variance and her thin, graceful figure has often been remarked. Ladies who would see Miss Ward rounding out a gala night in the old Paris days with a steaming bowl of onion soup would glance at her figure and heave an envious sigh. In her 60's she would sweep on the dance floor with the floating grace of a puff ball. But Time always catches up with its runaways. And now Miss Ward has been forced on a strict diet with drinks barred.

When Rube Goldberg flew over the Grand Canyon to the coast recently he looked down and started to tip his hat. He thought at first it was Martha Raye smiling and saying hello.

Isn't It So?

Do not allow convictions to be punctured with prejudice.

The best thing to do when we cannot see in the other direction is to look straight up.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Admiral Horthy was elected by Parliament in 1920 as regent while the Austrian throne remained vacant.

A few days ago the Parliament quietly conferred on Horthy virtually all of the prerogatives of the kings of Austria-Hungary. They even fixed the method of choosing his successor — WITHOUT DEBATE or asking the people.

Horthy in 1921 defeated King Charles, who tried to regain the throne of Austria-Hungary. The Hapsburg dynasty was then outlawed—which leaves, as in some comic opera, Horthy regent for a king who no longer legally exists. Now the "regent" has taken over the whole royal works.

Even so, Hungarians RIGHTLY PREFER Horthy's dictatorship of law and order to the months of Communistic butchery during the reign of the infamous Bela Kun, lately reported executed by Stalin.

The corner stone, laid the other day, for the Edison "Tower of Light" at Menlo Park, N. J., to commemorate Edison's completion of the Incandescent bulb, recalls the little known fact that in 1886 the world was astounded by a book that told how Edison had secretly created in his laboratory a woman, whom he named The New Eve.

This book was written by the then celebrated French poet and story-teller, Count Villiers de L'Isle-Adam. It was called "L'Eve." The making of this living, breathing woman was described so minutely and with such a profound knowledge of Edison's own scientific wizardry that the inventor was overwhelmed by messages of inquiry from all over the world.

The book, of course, was a satire, a hoax, but the most extraordinary since Poe's hoax about the balloon that crossed the Atlantic ocean one hundred years ago.

If you ever read "L'Eve" you will wonder who was the greater wizard—Edison or Count de L'Isle-Adam.

"Mars Is an Arid World" is the latest dictum of the scientists who have been observing the ups-and-downs of that little red planet about 35,000,000 miles from the earth.

Being arid, it is, therefore, uninhabited, some say. Others say that life there is possible.

As there are clouds on Mars, it is probable that there is water there. What it is suffering from now, in all probability, is a dust-bowl disturbance.

If the Martians, granting there are such, look at us through telescopes, they are probably speculating about us in just the same way we speculate about them.

Old Ptolemy, the Egyptian astronomer of the second century A. D., believed that all the stars revolved around this earth. Copernicus and others smashed that theory. We are only a grain of sand on the shoreless wastes of space.

But the legend still persists in some of the most enlightened brains that this planet alone contains life and that all other worlds are uninhabited—which is sheer unimaginative EGOTISM.

In the English encampment for Basque refugee children it is the same story—they do not like the ways of foreigners and want to get back, bombs or no bombs.

What a foolishness is this talk of "internationalism" when even children know by instinct that their country is the one where they belong.

We are all what our ancestors were. "Internationalism" in politics and race is a pose—WHEN IT ISN'T A COMMUNIST MASK.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

It is not surprising that Superior Judge Lewe of Chicago should want to be transferred to some other division of the court. The court over which he has been presiding has established an all time record of 3327 divorces since last September. Listening day after day to a torrent of domestic woe is enough to depress any judge, no matter how strong his determination may be to keep his thoughts on the brighter and better side of life. Judge Lewe says the divorce record causes him much concern. It should cause society much concern, too.

"I shudder to think what the future holds for our youth if divorces continue to increase as they have in the last decade," Judge Lewe says. "Divorces are the result of poor marriages, and the state, instead of encouraging divorces, should pay more attention to bringing about wholesome marriages."

The changed attitude of the public toward divorce is largely responsible for the shocking increase in divorces. Divorce used to be a serious and a tragic last resort of the unhappily married. The individual who could not make a success of matrimony was looked upon with disfavor. Now divorce not only is commonplace, but many people consider it "smart." Marriage is contracted lightly with the thought that "if we don't make a go of it, we can get a divorce." All sense of responsibility for making marriage a success is being lost.

Here is an example of "adding insult to injury." Cleveland taxpayers in an attempt to prevent an increase in the salaries of city Councilmen, petitioned for a referendum. The city then hired 33 clerks to check the signatures on the petitions, fixed the pay of each clerk at $100, and allowed each councilman to name one clerk. Protesting against the salary raises costs the taxpayers $3300. And government in this country is supposed to be "of the people by the people and for the people."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Get in on this—it's good.

"Fat" started it. Fat—otherwise John Allen Jones—is thirteen, has ideas of his own and believes the world is picking on him. As demonstrated by the Bathing Suit Outrage.

Elsie Robinson

Came the first swimming party of the year and, as usual, Fat had lost his old suit. Nobody had one to lend. Whereupon arose the usual bedlam —charges, outcries, recriminations.

Enter Mom, beaming — with a Happy Thought! She knew the Very Thing—Dad's old suit! Too small for Dad, but just Dandy for Fat!

"Aw gosh, Mom—you don't expect me to wear a thing like THAT!"

"For goodness sake, why not?"

YOUTH PROTESTS

"Why, NO-OO-OBODY wears suits like that NOW. Lookit that ole top! Lookit those ole trunks! Gee, Mom—why, if I went out in a suit like that, the fellers 'ud kid me AW-W-WFUL! Hones', Mom, I'd ruther NEVER go swimming again, not in my WHOLE life, than wear that goofey ole suit! If you knew how a feller felt! I can't, I tell you . . . I JESS WON'T!"

"Listen here, Young Man! I've had just about enough of this nonsense. This is a perfectly good suit. No one could possibly tell it from a new one—and what would it matter if they did? S'pose it is an inch longer—what does that matter? Your father would be glad to wear it if he could, and things have come to a pretty pass if you must have better things than your own father.

"Why, when he was your age, he was glad to get ANYTHING just s'long as he could go to the party. Youngsters didn't have such crazy ideas then! Believe me, we took what we could get and were glad for it. So you just march out of here, Young Man, with that suit, AND DON'T LET ME HEAR ANOTHER WORD OUT OF YOU!"

FAMILIAR SOUNDS

So Fat marched. But Mom's complacency would have been badly dented if she had seen him ten minutes after . . . swapping his brand new $5 microscope for the rental of more suitable haberdashery, having deposited Dad's suit in Buck's garbage pail!

Sounds familiar, doesn't it? Dollars to doughnuts, you face such a rumpus daily in your own house. Junior contemplating suicide because Dad says the old tennis racket is good enough. Sister flouncing off in a tempest of tears because Mom refuses to let her have a permanent. What's the answer?

Mom of course is right in declaring that youngsters once had to "take what they could get and no back talk"—but she's fibbing a bit when she says that they were glad for it.

Youngsters are natural conformists . . . hate "being different" . . . feel humiliated by such differences and bitterly resentful toward the elders who cause them. This was as true in 1907 as it is in 1937.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

Should Mom and Dad remember this fact and follow the modern trend, giving the youngsters their way within reason. . . .sacrificing dollars and discipline for the sake of achieving a finer companionship, a deeper loyalty and devotion?

Or should they forget their own youthful pangs. . .pooh-pooh junior's and sister's distress . . . force them to wear and do things which are different from their schoolmates?

Will that make junior and sister "more sensible and practical"? Will it "teach them the value of money" and consideration for their hard-working parents? Or will it merely hurt and harden them. . .make them resent all authority. . .and cruelly mar the one period of their lives when they might rightfully expect tender understanding and carefree joy?
